FDR Vetoes Bankhead Farm Parity Bill

PRESIDENT DUBS MEASURE INFLATIONARY

Appeals To Congress To Stand By Present Wage and Price Stabilization Policy.

WARNS OF 'SPIRAL'

Roosevelt Says Farmers Now In Relatively Favorable Economic Position.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today vetoed the Bankhead farm parity bill, describing it as "inflationary in character." He appealed to congress to stand by "its declared policy to stablize all prices and wages."

The bill would prohibit the inclusion of farm benefit payments in the computation of parity prices for purposes of fixing ceiling prices on farm commodities.

Mr. Roosevelt said the bill was "wholly inconsistent with our stabilization program and, therefore, dangerous alike to our constructive farm policy and to our whole war effort."

Obviously mindful that an attempt will be made to override his veto, the president in his message to the senate appealed "to the considered judgment of the congress" to reject the measure.

The president forecast a runaway inflation spiral if the administration's present anti-inflation line is broken down.

The Bankhead bill was aimed at a portion of Mr. Roosevelt's price stabilization order instructing that payments to farmers under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act, the agricultural adjustment act or incentive subsidies shall be deducted in computing the parity price below which ceiling prices can not be set.

Farm leaders pushed the bill through both houses of congress with an argument that the price stabilization act, on which the order was based, did not grant anyone the right to deduct such

Grand Jury Panel Indicts 13; Clears Death Car Driver

The Richland county grand jury today had indicted 13 of the 15 men whose cases were considered in yesterday's one-day session. Arraignments in common pleas court have been set by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch for 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Thomas Titus, Mansfield, and Wayne Koehler and Harry Brown, Ashland, were indicted for burglary in connection with the theft of a slot machine from the William Pugh grocery on Olivesburg road Jan. 6, in the first case up for consideration.

A no bill was voted in the cases of Fred Wittshlager, driver of the car which struck and fatally injured Harley Dilgard, 13, last Saturday. A no bill was also returned in the case of George Risic, 42, Shelby, who is already serving a one-year workhouse sentence on a charge filed in connection with the same sex case which the jurors investigated.

William Parcak and Roy Grubaugh were indicted for grand larceny as the result of the theft of cigars and auto batteries, to-

Nazis Call Their Retreat An Offensive Withdrawal.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Nazis improved today on the story about the army which advanced to the rear.

The Nazi-controlled Lyon radio said of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's current retreat: "The offensive withdrawal of the Axis forces continued along the whole of the Tunisian front."

$6,649,000 County's War Loan Quota

Banks to Seek to Raise $2,224,000; Public's Goal $4,425,000.

Challenged by the biggest war bond goal in the county's history, Richland county bond selling agencies will unite in a campaign beginning April 12 to sell $6,649,000 worth of government securities in the second War Loan drive.

Headed by H. G. Brunner and Paul M. Eliot, co-chairman of the campaign committee, the drive will reach into every business establishment and home in the county during the three-week period ending April 30.

The county's ten banks have been asked to purchase $2,224,000 worth of bonds and the public's share of the goal was set at $4,425,000.

Mansfield will be called on to invest $5,000,000 in bonds during the campaign. Shelby's quota was placed at $1,100,000, while the villages and farm areas will be asked to meet a $550,000 quota, Brunner said.

The first war loan drive last December produced $5,489,573 in sales, but the banks then purchased 65 per cent of the total amount. This time, the picture has been reversed with the public called on to meet about 65 per cent of the total goal and the banks the rest, Brunner pointed out.

Women block leaders in Mansfield are meeting in a series of instruction sessions this week under the direction of Mrs. Helen Ott, chairman, in preparation for the campaign which gets under way a week from next Monday, Eliot said.

A meeting of all township chairmen is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. next Monday at the county agent's office in the courthouse where details of the drive will be outlined. County Agent George B. Ganyard is chairman of the county group. From 15 to 20 workers will make home visits in the villages and rural areas in each township.

In addition to the Series E, F, and G bonds, other government issues will be offered during the drive. They include a 26-year bond producing two and a half per cent interest and in denominations of from $500 to one million dollars; a 2 per cent treasury bond, due

SHEER LOSS!

WPB Rules Stockings Must Be More Serviceable.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Feminine vanity received a blow today with the war production board's ban on very sheer stockings and an order to make rayon stockings more "serviceable."

Specifically, the WPB eliminated "50 dernier" rayon full fashioned hosiery of ordinary quality. In the past, this stocking has represented the sheerest hosiery made—and also the poorest wearing the WPB said.

In its place WPB will allow hosiery made of 50 Dernier semi-high tenacity yarns, which have greater strength but, unfortunately for the feminine leg, are not as sheer.

VOTE TO STRIKE

Cleveland Busmen Insist On Higher Pay.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—International officers of the City Transit System Employes' union were notified today of the unofficial vote 9 to 1 in favor of a strike here, because of the company's refusal of an increase of more than 2½ cents an hour.

Walter J. McCarter, system general manager, announced that employes have received more than 15 per cent in wage increases in the past two months.

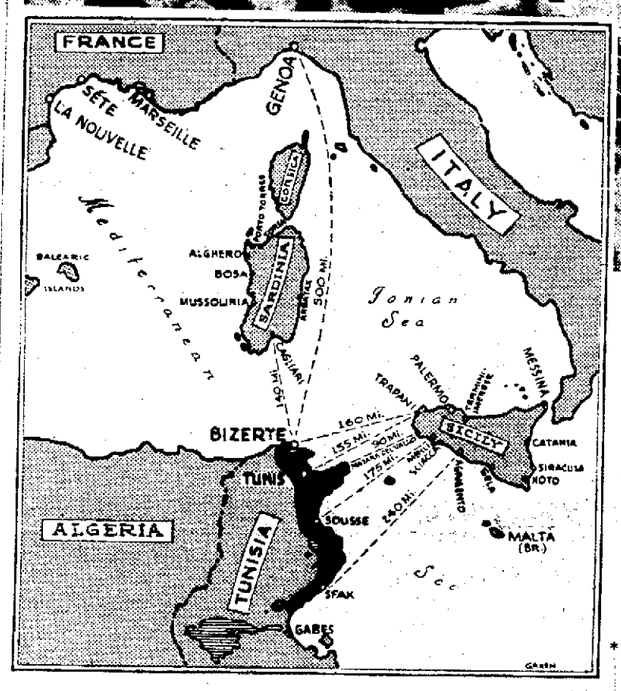
KILLER'S ILL

Reported In Serious Condition From Bullet Wound.

LEXINGTON, Ky. — (INS) — Frank Hopkins, who shot and killed Andrew C. Pierson and then barricaded himself with his wife and four children in his home, was reported in serious condition today from a bullet wound in his lung which he received in the duel.

Hopkins surrendered Tuesday 24 hours after the shooting affray with Pierson.

Men Who Drove Rommel to Look for Way Out



The wounded British soldiers shown in the top photo accomplished one of the costliest undertakings in modern warfare—a frontal assault on defenses in depth — when they drove Rommel's Africa Corps from the Mareth line and sent the Nazi 'fox' reeling up the Tunisian coast. Routes which the Axis might use in trying to escape from Tunisia are shown in the map below. The Germans are reported to have requisitioned all French merchant ships in preparation for an African Dunkirk; but Hitler is also reported to have ordered a last ditch stand in northern Tunisia.

Told by Distillers to Ration Liquor, State Action Looming

More encouragement that Ohio is finally taking steps to solve its muddled liquor problem came from Columbus today when Don A. Fisher, state liquor director, indicated he would heed recommendations of major distilleries and inaugurate a liquor rationing program soon.

"I don't see any other way out," declared E. F. O'Brien, vice president of Frankfort Distilleries, Inc., and spokesman for a group of 15 liquor manufacturers who met yesterday with Fisher and Gov. John W. Bricker.

Fisher told the Associated Press in Columbus today the state liquor department is prepared to begin rationing as soon as the senate enacts a house-approved bill authorizing him to establish a more equitable distribution system.

Under the current plan of dispensing one-seventh of a week's supply daily at the state stores, with two-seventh offered on Saturdays, virtually the same persons are in the line-up of customers from day to day, observers say. Much of the supply is going into the hands of bootleggers.

The distillers denied charges

PICKS BROMFIELD

Bricker Names Richlander To Conservation Commission.

Louis Bromfield, Richland county author-farmer, and active conservation proponent, today was appointed to an eight-year term as a Democratic member of the Ohio Conservation and National Resources commission by Gov. John W. Bricker.

Announcement of the appointment was made in telegraph dispatches to The News-Journal from Columbus.

Bromfield, who has been particularly interested in water conservation and erosion control, will succeed C. P. Kite of St. Mary's. The term begins at once and expires the first Monday in February, 1951.

The governor also named to the commission Dr. Benjamin H. Talbut, Toledo, to succeed the late Henry J. Pfeiffer, Kenton. Dr. Talbut's term will expire on the first of February, next year.

Sub Sinking Big Thrill for Mansfielder, 17, In Navy a Year

By VIRGINIA LEE

He's only 17 but a year in the navy has given Seaman Robert M. McLaughlin, 26 South Foster street, a lifetime of experiences including a round-the-world trip and the thrill of possibly having destroyed a German submarine with a shot from a gun on a naval vessel on which he served as gunner.

Home today on a furlough — timed to coincide with the 23rd wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McLaughlin—young McLaughlin isn't sure it was his gun that sunk the submarine but he is sure that it was of the ship's two guns that fired two shots each that destroyed it.

The submarine incident took place off the shores of South Africa, not far distant from Cape Town.

REJECTS BOOST IN TAX SPLIT

House Keeps City and County Share of Sales Tax To $12,000,000 Figure.

Mansfield and Richland county this year will receive approximately $111,460 from the state's $12,000,000 annual sales tax appropriation to city and county political subdivisions if yesterday's house action is maintained in passage of the $366,756,254 biennial appropriation bill.

Sharp criticism is being directed at Gov. John W. Bricker and his legislative backers for failure to increase shares from sales tax sources. The house yesterday defeated a plan to allocate 14 millions for cities and counties, with A. Lee Fair, Millersburg Democrat, declaring that if the distribution of sales tax had remained on the basis of 40 per cent for local governments and 60 per cent to schools these beneficiaries would have received 20 millions more by now than they have under the flat rate subsidy.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said that any allocation participated in by the city is appor-

Grass Fire Alarms Result In Warning From Fire Chief

Warning that householders must more carefully guard fires set to dispose of grass piles and rubbish cleared from lawns and victory garden plots came today from Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger.

"More than 20 grass and rubbish fire alarms have been responded to by crews of the four engine houses during the last week," Seeburger pointed out. "This entails a heavy consumption of gasoline and oil and a tremendous wear on tires. Naturally, I do not want the department to neglect any call but it seems only logical to appeal to all Mansfielders for their fuller cooperation in guarding their own spring clean-up fires."

Yesterday Central station firemen made such runs to suburban Park avenue west, Belmont avenue and Trimble road. A fourth run last night was to extinguish a slight blaze at Happy Harry's restaurant, Park avenue west.

BLOCKS NEW ACTION ON PAY-GO TAX

Doughton, Head of Committee, Leaves Washington In Huff at Demand.

TRADE PACT DUE NEXT

Congressman Declines To Call Session, Republicans Take Optimistic View.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A walk-out by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., of the house ways and means committee today apparently has blocked immediate reconsideration of pay-as-you-go tax legislation.

Doughton announced that he was "going home"—Laurel Springs, N. C., according to the congressional directory—and would not call his committee into session until April 12, at which time renewal of the reciprocal trade act will be the order of the day.

The ways and means chairman, whose "no-forgiveness" tax plan was rebuffed along with the Ruml plan by a dissatisfied house this week, was irked about a call for immediate action on a new pay-as-you-go bill from House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts.

"Mr. McCormack did not consult me, nor any other majority member of the committee before issuing his statement on tax matters," Doughton said. "Previous commitments made it impossible for the committee to again take up the subject of taxation immediately."

However, in high Republican quarters there was a note of optimism. They declined to be quoted, but saw "significance" in the fact that Rep. Harold Knutson, R., Minn.—leader of the floor fight for the Ruml plan—was leaving town for a brief "vacation" simultaneously with Doughton. Knutson's destination was unannounced, but it was rumored that he would confer with Doughton "away from the Washington pressure groups."

McCormack, who has consistently advocated a compromise on the forgiveness issue, said inauguration of collection at the source by July 1 was desirable. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., earlier stated that no form of pay-as-you-go taxation could be put into effect this year.

DAD DRAFT NEAR

Hershey Says Inductions May Start About July 1.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Drafting of married men with children drew steadily nearer today.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, said that selective service headquarters is considering revoking its order of last summer instructing local draft boards not to induct fathers with pre-Pearl Harbor dependents, who are maintaining a bonafide relationship with their families.

Hershey said that the time for reclassifying fathers is "approaching more rapidly than we like to think about," and indicated that the draft boards would probably have to start taking married men with pre-Pearl Harbor dependents about July 1.

Mass Air Attack Batters Airfield at Sfax, Blasts Troop Concentrations; Patton's Yanks Push Steadily Eastward Toward Gabes.

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Merciless pounding of retreating Axis lines by a force of nearly 100 Allied bombers was officially announced today as indications pointed to an early junction of British and American troops in central Tunisia.

Throughout yesterday, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters revealed, scores of Allied planes attacked enemy concentrations and airfields in the largest mass daylight onslaught against Axis troops since the battle of El Alamein.

It was the second day in succession that a force aggregating 100 planes had been sent against the enemy. On Wednesday, nearly 100 Boeing Flying Fortresses, the largest squadron of these four-motored bombers ever assembled for a single attack, devastated the great Sardinian port of Cagliari.

The El Maou air field at Sfax was one of the principal targets of the assault, but a large force of British Wellingtons also attacked at El Djem, 40 miles north of Sfax.

Two of five Messerschmitts taking off at Lafauconniere when the attack began were bombed, while two other Messerschmitts of a formation of a dozen were damaged in a running fight with Spitfires.

At El Djem bombs straddled the dispersal area, landing among aircraft on the east side of the field.

Huge clouds of smoke covered the Lafauconniere field when the first wave of Douglas bombers completed their run over the target area.

Hundreds of fighter plane sorties were carried out throughout the day from dawn to dusk in support of ground operations.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.'s forces pushed steadily eastward from El Guetar toward Gabes, mopping up desperately fighting German rearguard units,

THRUST: Soviets Take Three Towns In Novorossisk Drive

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Three more villages have fallen to Soviet troops closing about Novorossisk and other German positions along the Black sea coast, the Russians announced today, but elsewhere on the long front only minor activity was reported by the Soviet noon communique.

(The German communique broadcast today by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press said the Russians had launched a series of strong attacks south of Lake Ladoga, but German firepower and close-range fighting beat them down in front of the Nazi lines.

(The Russian war bulletin made no mention of this front, which is close to the Finnish border.

(The Germans declared the Russians had lost 1,267 planes during March.)

The advance in the Kuban valley on the Caucasus last night followed gains reported previously in the midnight communique.

Air duels continued in the area, the Russians asserting nine enemy planes were shot down and three damaged when Soviet airmen intercepted a Nazi air force raid.

The Russians announced they were consolidating positions northeast of Smolensk in the drive for that German base and German counter-attacks were repulsed.

Russian counter-attacks threw back a German force in the

'MILK-RUN': Steady U. S. Raids Take Heavy Toll of Jap Power

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American bombers battered a Japanese force of five destroyers southwest of Kolombangara while almost at the same time, fighter planes were engaging 30 to 40 Japanese Zero fighters and shooting down 16 of the enemy planes, the navy reported today.

(By United Press)

American fliers, hampered in their efforts by distance and lack of planes, are keeping up a blasting attack on Japanese southwestern Pacific positions, reports showed today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's pilots raided Mubo, a Japanese concentration area on the New Guinea coast, yesterday, starting numerous fires. It was the 15th straight day of forays against this area on the north and east coasts above Allied-held Buna.

Other raids generally were routine. A compilation of MacArthur's March communiques showed how effective these milk-run attacks have become. At least 363 enemy planes—probably many more—and 35 ships were destroyed or damaged so badly they probably were wrecked, the compilation showed.

A British New Delhi communique said that RAF planes had brought down five and probably three others of 30 fighter-escorted Jap bombers that hit at Feni, in southeastern Bengal. In return, the RAF kept up its pounding Japanese bases and shipping in occupied Burma.

Fighting picked up a little on the China land front. Chinese troops have smashed Japanese attempts to cross into southern Yunnan province from Burma and now are attacking the enemy on Burma soil, a Chinese communi-

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I considered for several seconds before I answered Olga's query, for I felt that I did not know the answer myself.

"I think that is putting it too strongly," I hedged at last "Frankly, I do not think Georges is the Sydney Carton type"

"Not Georges; not that lad" Dicky stuck in flippantly. "In Georges case absence would make the heart grow fonder—of the other girl, nearer at hand."

"Thank you, Dicky," I said gravely. "You have put it much better than I could No, Olga, I do not think Georges has been in love with Mary and I am sure he is not now attracted to her."

"Not now, perhaps," she said "Mary took good care of that, bless her! But when he met Mary in your apartment this afternoon, was he not strongly attracted to her and did he not show that so plainly that neither you nor Mary could fail to recognize his feeling?

"Yes, and no, Olga," I told her "Anyone not knowing him well would have thought that in my husband's atrocious phraseology—

'That he was carrying the torch again for Mary with some extra flame effects" he said. "Is that what you mean?"

"Virtually," I told him "But Mary and I agreed afterward that while undoubtedly he was intrigued a bit on meeting her again, his flamboyant wards meant nothing, and that when he saw Olina again, he would forget Mary"

Olga looked at me fixedly, then shook her head slowly.

"You are being very kind and thoughtful, my dear Madge, and I am grateful for your delicacy, but —it won't do. It doesn't explain why Mary's behavior tonight was so infinitely foreign to her. Please tell me the rest."

Faces the Music

I drew a long breath and faced the music.

"First, I want to tell you that I believe firmly that Georges is not seriously interested in Mary. However, I pointed out to Mary that if Georges came to this party in the mood he showed this afternoon, when he was especially loquacious on the subject of Noel's permitting his wife to associate publicly with a 'bounder like Redfield' to quote him exactly—"

"Why—Why—" Philip Vertizen sputtered excitedly.

'I was afraid that he might embarrass Mary," I said, "and anger Noel, by paying attention to her. So I asked Mary if she could not turn off her charm and appear silent and uninteresting She agreed, and wore an unbecoming gown, thus arousing Noel's resentment, who wished her to be the outstanding figure at the party."

Philip nodded his head, as if confirming this trait in Noel, and Dicky gave a sudden understanding laugh.

"The clever brat!" he exclaimed. "She switched plans on you, knowing that while Georges might be puzzled and intrigued by the silent pose, he would be repelled and even disgusted by her all-out attack on him"

"An exceedingly skillful portrayal," Philip Vertizen said "She is an actress."

But Olga's insight was deeper "What that must have cost Mary!" she said.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT THOSE ENTRIES

SO MANY players get into regular habits for the play of their contracts. If it is at a suit they drop trumps first unless there is a need of ruffing some losers with the dummy's short trumps. If it is in No Trumps, they go after the dummy's suit first before thinking of developing other tricks. All of that is bad bridge, unless analysis of the various factors bearing on the hand indicates that such is the best plan. For one thing, an effort to bring in a suit without first counting the necessary entries can mean the scrapping of an alternative plan which could have worked

After South won the spade J lead with one of his honors he noted without delay that the diamond suit was solid except for the A, so went right after it The Q scored, then the 10 was overtaken by the J. Now he stopped to size up his dilemma. East had not been foolish enough to play his A, so still had it to block the suit There was no point to another diamond lead, as setting up a couple of diamonds would not produce any more tricks, the dummy having no re entry to use them. So now he led a club from dummy and finessed the Q. That worked, but the only remaining chance now was to drop the K with the A When this didn't work, he was licked, finding no way to get more than eight tricks.

Very brief study should have shown South that the diamond suit was hopeless unless the holder of the A had only one small card with it, or unless the owner would play it on the second round instead of holding up. Better play would have been to lead the diamond Q to the K, as an entry for a first finesse of clubs, then use the 10 to the J as an entry for a second finesse of the suit That method would have produced five club tricks and game, and in addition, would have given South just as good a chance to find the holder of the diamond A playing it on the second round to set up that suit.

Consider Your Make Up and Dress Colors

By MME. QUI VIVE

If you are a blonde, don't fancy that you must stick to pink and white shades of makeup If you are a brunette, and for years have been using rachel powder and a deep rose cheek brightener and lipstick to match, get wise to yourself You don't have to. It is as thrilling to change your complexion as it is to revel in a new coiffure Too many of us are inclined to cherish the fixed idea And that is why your good looks reporter believes it is well worth while to drop into a smart cosmetic bar, get professional advice Doesn't cost anything It is included in the cosmetic sale

You won't find quite as many tones of powder or shades of rouge and lipstick as you have in the past but there is still a grand array from which to choose. What looks the prettiest on the counter may not be the one that looks the prettiest on you. It is convenient to have several shades, so that you can select those that harmonize with the frock.

If you are wearing a gay little hat, that also must be taken into consideration A magenta lid and a lip film of bright cheery will conflict.

With the black frock or hat that naturally drains the skin of coloring, you can fare forth with lipstick of vivid red With the green dress you must watch your cosmetic steps The rouge and lipstick should be of a wine shade—you'll find claret, burgundy and grenadine

Brown attire calls for orange red pigments, though one can use scarlet if the brown is a dark shade

When white or light shades are worn in the evening a powder of fairy lightness in ivory or a delicate peach tone is flattering, giving the skin a pearl-like finish Rouge should be wild rose, lipstick slightly darker. Add mauve or grey eye shadows and you'll feel elegant.

The foregoing are suggestions. There can be no hard and fast rules concerning facial batik. One must regard the eyes and the hair, especially when the hair is blonde or red Still, one can have variations. Even the loveliest woman gets a bit bored with her face now and then, seeks color alterations, as she seeks new styles in clothes, new araringements of her brains blanket.

Should you discover that raspberry is your best lip brightener, get several shades. If you use rouge be sure that it conforms to the color of the lips

GROSS KEEPS 144

HARRISBURG, Pa. (U.P.) A rearrangement of seats in the state legislature didn't appeal to Assemblyman Paul Gross because it meant he would have to leave seat 144. Gross argued: "My locker number is 144, my desk number is 144 and my seat number is 144. That's 12 dozen, or one gross—and that's me." Gross went back to seat 144.

RICKENBACKER STORY APPEARS IN NEW LIST

'Seven Came Through' One of Two New Books Having War as Background.

Two of the realistic stories which have come out of the present war are SEVEN CAME THROUGH by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and I SERVED ON BATAAN by an army nurse Juanita Redmond. Both books are among the group of new fiction and non-fiction which will be placed on the shelves of the Mansfield public library Saturday.

Capt. Rickenbacker tells with complete candor and vigor the amazing story of the 21 harrowing days that he and his companions spent on rafts in the Pacific. The book concludes with his personal message aimed at the vigorous prosecution of the war.

"I Served on Bataan" is a simply told, yet powerful recreation of a chapter in the history of American warfare told by a nurse who was one of the few who escaped from Corregidor. Her book is a tribute to those gallant fighters on Bataan.

SOUTHWEST PASSAGE by John Lardner is a report to the nation of its men on the far-flung fronts of the Pacific—of modern Australia; of desert and jungle; of Port Moresby and Darwin: at sea on a rusty old munitions carrier; in the air over New Guinea; of a meeting with MacArthur—seen with the keen eye for human and significant detail of a fine journalist, war correspondent for "Newsweek."

SIBERIA by Emil Lengyel is an excellent history and present day analysis of the vast territory that may be the final battleground of Russia's stand against the Nazis and the Japs its pageantry, its people, and its potentialities. The book is well illustrated with maps and a complete index. Mr. Lengyel is also the author of "Dakar" and "The Danube."

Other non-fiction includes SOCIAL SECURITY AND LIFE INSURANCE, Cranefield & Gaumnitz; HOW TO CHOOSE A JUNIOR COLLEGE, Davis; LET'S UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER, Wembridge; PREPARING THE MANUSCRIPT, Olsen; CHRISTIAN SYMBOLISM IN THE EVANGELICAL CHURCHES, Stafford; ILLUSTRATIVE MATERIALS IN MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT AND ADMINISTRATION, Kneier; NUTRITION AND THE WAR, Bourne; MATHEMATICS IN AVIATION, Osteyee; 25 NON ROYALTY ONE-ACT PLAYS FOR ALL-GIRL CASTS, Smith; THE CHILEAN POPULAR FRONT, Stevenson.

GOOD-BYE, MY SON by Marjorie Coryn is the story of a soldier—from the time of his birth through his half-pathetic, half-arrogant youth, his meteor sweep to power, his spectacular fall, to his lonely death. But it is the soldier seen not through the eyes of the admiring world, but as he appeared to his own family and, most unforgettable of all, to his mother. That this son happens to be Napoleon Bonaparte and this woman, Letizia, his mother, adds fire and thunder to a novel absorbing not only because of its main character but for its modern implications.

The scene of ONLY THE VALIANT by Charles M. Warren is the Apache country of the Southwest. The time: the last stand of a small army post against the great Chief Tucksos and his sinister tribe, in the 1870's. It is a story of action and character, of physical suspense and psychological suspense; for when Captain Lance takes out a handful of men to fight a delaying action until vital re-enforcements can arrive, every member of his suicide detail has a personal reason to hate him. And Lance himself is tormented by a conflict not settled until the final hot stress of battle.

DARK WEDDING by Ramon J. Sender, an outstanding Spanish novelist of our time, is a tense, exciting drama of anarchy and revolt and struggle for control in an island penal colony off the coast of Mex

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—As President Roosevelt has indicated, the next step is to reach the same accord with Russia that now exists with Great Britain as a result of the visit of Anthony Eden. And after that a meeting of minds with China.

This is not a matter of treaties or formal agreements, but of a general meeting of minds on some fundamentals, on the direction in which we want to go.

Clapper

For instance, with regard to Germany, there are two broad courses that might be followed when the defeat comes.

One course would be to try the same policy used after the last war and set up a new German republic. That course is not favored on the basis of past experience.

The other course is to divide Germany up. That is what we favor. It is what the British favor. It is what Germany's neighbors, such as the Dutch, favor. It is what Stalin has indicated he favors.

That was one of the big subjects of the Eden conversations here. As a result of the general consensus that this was the line of approach to follow, work can now go forward on tentative studies of how such a policy might be applied.

Obviously, dozens of difficult questions arise instantly. What is to be done during the first three or four months after German resistance collapses? What is to be done about German heavy industry? Shall it be broken up, or allowed to exist under policing to see that it is not used as the foundation for German rearmament? What are to be the trade relations between the various states? What currency controls? What kind of supervision by the United Nations?

As President Roosevelt says, no advance decisions can be made with finality. Nobody knows what the conditions will be at the end of the fighting. We can only prepare for some of the possible conditions, and have our general direction definitely in mind.

The Allies are determined upon a complete victory over Germany. Last time there was no march to Berlin. This time the United Nations armies will march into Berlin.

While the postwar conversations and studies go forward, it is emphasized here that President Roosevelt is still spending most of his time upon what he considers by far the most urgent task—that of fighting the war. He considers that far from completed. Talk of what is to be done with the victory, important as it is, yet falls far back in second place in the budget of the president's personal attention.

Above all this government is not interested at this time in the boundary claims of various countries. They are only of secondary interest in America anyway. Our main interest is in having a stable Europe. We want some arrangement over there that will not explode again and draw us in a third time.

We decidedly are not going out to crusade for every minority in Europe. Some of those countries are using their leverage among their foreign-born populations in this country to put on political heat through senators and representatives. The Poles are very active in this regard.

There is some feeling here that the Atlantic charter is being made a stick now with which to beat a drum for any case that one may wish to make. High in the administration a good deal of approval was voiced this week over an editorial in the New York Herald-Tribune entitled "A False Issue." It took exception to the views expressed in a recent speech by William C. Bullitt, former American ambassador to Russia and to France.

The editorial said there was an irresponsible tendency among some people to raise the Atlantic charter as a means of creating an issue with Russia over the latter's claim to the Baltic states, eastern Poland and Bessarabia.

The editorial stated that it would be absurd to argue from the Atlantic charter that the United States is committed to insist upon keeping inviolate every pre-1939 boundary in Europe or to reconstitute every governmental regime, dubious or otherwise, which then existed.

Emphasis here at the moment is on driving the Germans out of those overrun countries, rather than trying to untangle the age-old and hopelessly mixed-up boundary questions.

PRICES GO UP, LITTLE PIGS ALL GO HIDE

Missing Hogs Big Mystery as Livestock Market Hits $16 Top.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Hog prices at the Chicago stockyards climbed today to $16.10, the highest price paid since 1920, when the top was $18.25.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — The mystery of the missing pigs remained a mystery at the Chicago stockyards today while hog prices reached peaks unequaled previously since October, 1940. The top yesterday was $16.00.

A record breaking 1942 spring pig crop was forecast by the department of agriculture this year and buyers at the market have awaited an expected flood of porkers daily since the first of the year. While salable receipts in March were moderate, they were wholly inadequate to meet demand and average drove costs were held at consistently high levels.

Livestock experts were unable to advance definite reasons as to why the hogs were not being marketed in larger numbers.

"The pigs were born all right," they said, "and the usual number grew to maturity. The farmers have held back some to fatten them up, but that can't go on forever. Maybe, the black markets are siphoning off a considerable supply. Anyway, they're not coming to market."

Total receipts last month were 247,397 head compared with 240,710 a year earlier; 252,639 in 1941, and 259,162 in Ohio. Of the swine shipped in, 65 per cent were barrows and gilts, indicating producers were holding back sows to increase production of pigs for next year.

Prices have held at peak levels, the experts said, because of the abnormal demand for army and navy and from lend-lease requirements, which are expected to account for 45 per cent of this year's total. The ordinary consumer demand also has increased greatly.

Between 1935 and 1939, the per capita consumption of meat in the United States was 126 pounds. In 1941 it increased to 141 and last year was 146 pounds. Rationing will lower the rate, experts said, estimating consumption this year would be 104 pounds.

FIND 'MISSING' DEATH BULLET

Authorities Get New Evidence in Akron Slayings.

AKRON—(INS)—Although medical authorities, with the aid of X-ray, discovered the "missing" bullet in the body of George Reynolds, Coroner R. E. Amos today held to his theory that the deaths of the 55-year-old Negro chef and Lucille D'Aprano, 23-year-old Kent State university co-ed, was double murder.

Amos said he still held to his verdict because the two slugs found in the body traveled in opposite directions, one from left to right, the other in the reverse.

Funeral services will be held today for Miss D'Aprano in two Cleveland Catholic churches.

Three-year-old Betty McCrea took her first spring walk alone yesterday, much to the consternation of her parents who live at 430 Woodland avenue. Mrs. McCrea excitedly notified Desk Sergeant Claude Watts at police headquarters that she had searched the neighborhood frantically for an hour but could not locate the child. Shortly afterward Mrs. W. H. Hunter, 323 Chester avenue, phoned police that the little girl had arrived at her home for a visit. Traffic Patrolman Roeliff Hout was assigned to escort the little nomad back to home.

Court Bailiff and Probation Officer, Ralph Hughes plays April Fool jokes on himself, much to disgust and inconvenience. In a hurry yesterday to get to his courthouse office before grand jurors assembled, he failed to paste his car license certificate on his car. A would-be prankster, or possibly someone who did not know of the five-day extension granted for licenses, advised him in tones of authority to post it at once "or else," so the chagrined official apologizing profusely drove hurriedly back home after it. He got the license all right but forgot his watch and its chain, whereon hung his keys. When he finally reached his office, he couldn't get in. Then someone told him he need not have posted his license yet for five days!

Equipped only with the small photograph of a war worker's identification badge, members of the police sabotage squad late yesterday apprehended a young southerner who is being held for investigation of his selective service (draft) status. His actions also had aroused suspicion of plant observers.

BENDER REPLIES TO GOP EDITOR

Defends Gov. Bricker In Talk on Floor of House, Cites Three Terms.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — George Bender of Cleveland, O., Republican representative-at-large, replied on the floor of the house yesterday to an editorial by William Allen White, Kansas editor, which Bender said questioned the qualifications of Buckeye Gov. John W. Bricker for president.

Asserting Bricker was the outstanding man for the Republican nomination for president, Bender said:

"Governor Bricker will not be denied by Republicans searching with millions of Democrats for a way out of the wilderness of bureaucracy and bunkum.

It was Bender's second statement recently describing Bricker as the leading Republican presidential prospect.

Bender said White's criticism was "general" and quoted Alice Roosevelt Longworth as having referred to Bricker as "an honest Harding."

Bender told the house "nothing can be more amusing to Governor Bricker's friends than the attempt to classify him as the relic of a bygone political generation.

"The plain fact is that no man could be elected governor of Ohio for three consecutive terms without a solid demonstration of his abilities . . .

"It is a great tribute to Gov John W. Bricker of Ohio that his opponents have begun a campaign of villification against him more than a year before the Republican national convention must convene to consider its nominee for the presidency.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Truth-is-later-than-fiction department:

Last December producer Colbert Clark sent to the sound stages a script called "The Boy From Stalingrad." Among its situations is one in which a Russian boy, 12 years old, goes to Nazi headquarters on pretext of confiding in the German commander the Russian plan of attack. Once there, the boy pulls out a hand grenade and blows up the place and all in it, including himself.

Coons

Studio people, viewing a rough cut of the picture, feared the scene would be incredible. They were relieved to read a recent magazine account in which the tale of a similar Russian boy was told—a boy using the same pretexts, the same weapon, with the same results.

Along the film domestic front: Mrs. Don Ameche has joined the do-your-own-housework brigade—and she with four boys ranging in age from nine to two years. She has closed the downstairs except for the kitchen. . . . Gene Tierney, opposite Don in "Heaven Can Wait," toiled over a hot stove for husband Private Oleg Cassini of the U. S. Cavalry during his visit here. Private Oleg showed no ill effects of the meal, but Gene was bedded for a day and has been asked to give up cooking for the film's duration. In the picture Gene speaks disparagingly of Kansas—but insists she doesn't mean it, that it's the one place she'd rather be and she is going as soon as she can get away. That's where Oleg is stationed—Fort Riley.

The movies' warring front is shifting to Turkey, with several features with that locale already in preparation.

Red Archer the horse and Caesar the dog who work with Orson Welles in "Jane Eyre" are feuding, and the other day Caesar took a nip at Red's ankles just as Welles was mounting him. The horse bolted. "I don't know why Caesar did that," said Frank Weatherwax, the dog's owner, "unless it was because I had to put him on a diet of horse meat the other day."

Greer Garson's first fan—the only autograph hunter to greet her when she arrived in New York in 1939—is Arthur Linden of New York. He has been writing her every few weeks since. His latest letter asked for more autographs; he was going in the army and wanted them to give to buddies. In return, he said, he would get her the autograph of the first German or Jap officer he captures.

George Montgomery, service-bound, finally found a place for his rabbits. They're at Henry Fonda's. Fonda had intended building hutches but enlisted in the navy before he got around to it. George and Ward Bond went up to Fonda's house and did the job for him—then George moved his own rabbitry over.

Inter-City bowling tournament reaches the half-way mark in its 7-week schedule this week-end, and it will be the toughest week-end, for the pin boys, of the entire joust.

It starts out lightly enough tomorrow night with only one shift scheduled, that at 9 o'clock, and on all 24 alleys. But they'll be banging away all day Sunday, starting at 9 a. m., and with the final shift scheduled for 11:30 p. m.

Colony Manager Al Vogel believes he has the problem solved by borrowing a dozen pin boys from Ashland and Galion alleys Sunday night.

You never can tell where lightning will strike in a bowling tournament, but this week's schedule gives no indication of championship fireworks The tournament ran out of defending champions a week ago.

Mansfield interest may center on the doubles division, and on Mansfield keglers at both ends of the day's pin punishing program. Jim Orr and Johnny Perrine at 9 a. m. Sunday, and Jim Weems and Brig Young at 11:30 p m

Perrine and Orr finished second in the state Moose doubles, while the veterans Young and Weems can make it interesting for anyone if they are in form.

That 705 singles score posted the first week of the tournament by L. Moats of Defiance looks better and better as time goes by.

The same score won the championship in 1939 and in 1927, and has been topped only six times in the tournament's 32 years.

The 2809 score by which Employes Transit of Lorain lead the 5-man division is 211 pins below last year's winning mark, and would have won the championship only 10 times in the 32 years.

In the doubles division the leading 1213 score of Bennett and Sharrock from Bucyrus is 186 pins off the all-time record of 1399 set a year ago by Hank Andorka and Tony Pompeii at Lorain and would have won the championship only 12 times.

And the 1835 with which B Haas of Marion paces the all events is 226 pins away from the all time record which Hank Andorka set last year with 2061 would have won 12 times but not once since 1924

There's plenty of room for winners to step in yet in every division but singles. And the gate is not up there.

Teams to watch this week include: Quality Casting company of Orrville with a 970 average and including C. Herman and S. Huntsberger, doubles champions in 1941 with 1924; the Sandusky Andy's of Milan team which includes G. Wintersteller, past president of the Inter-City association; Kelly Oil company, average 960, and Smoke Stacks, 900, of Steubenville; Fulmer Grocers, 943, of Troy; Bruck's Beer, 955, of Lima; and Alliance Machine Steel Casting.

While a number of Mansfield keglers will compete in singles and doubles, Yuncker Sports will be the only Mansfield team rolling this week-end, taking the alleys Saturday night.

WASHINGTON — (UP)— Continuance of spectator sports during the war and "reasonable travel" for participants and spectators has been put before the house in a joint resolution introduced by Rep Samuel A Weiss, D. Pa

Weiss' resolution, introduced yesterday, said that members of the armed forces and war workers "favor the continuance of sports as essential to the maintenance of their morale."

His resolution directed the office of defense transportation to permit reasonable travel for participants and spectators to sports events.

The chief recreation of both the armed forces and war workers, Weiss said, is as sports spectators, radio listeners and newspaper and periodical readers.

"Except where it is clearly established that continuance would interfere with the war effort, the movement of military or naval forces, or the movement of essential equipment or supplies" sports should be continued, Weiss declared.

Wyoming Cops Title In Garden

Mental and Physical Altitude Decides It.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK —(UP)— Basketball, which seems to have become a contest of altitude because of the inroads of glandular goons, mezzanine peepers and other performers approaching the seven-foot mark, attained the ultimate in height last night when the University of Wyoming team won the mythical national championship at Madison Square Garden.

This quintet operates from a campus at Laramie that has an altitude of 7,200 feet—an altitude which gives most visitors a nose bleed.

But the New York price makers, blinded by their own skyscrapers, such as "Big Boy" Harry Boykoff of St. Johns, made the St. John's team an overwhelming favorite in last night's Red Cross final for the national title before more than 18,000 fans in the Garden.

Wyoming, unquestionably the better team, proved its superiority over St. John's by winning, 52-47, in an overtime game.

Afterwards, the Wyoming coach —bespectacled Everett Shelton— admitted that the Wyoming triumph was due largely to altitude, not to the heights that could be measured by engineers, but rather to the heights attained psychologiecally by a team that was determined to win in its war-caused last performance and season.

Coach Shelton, a machine-gun sergeant in the last war at Chateau Thierry and Belleau wood, said: "I have been coaching basketball for 20 years. I have handled other teams that apparently were the equal of my current squad physically, but never have I had a band of boys whose team spirit was such that you could almost see it and feel it. In every game, I felt that that spirit gave us a sixth man on the floor."

* * *

This team, sparked by Capt. Ken Sailors—most brilliant performer to hit the Garden boards in years—knew it was making its last performance, because the entire varsity squad, and even the freshman squad is going into service. It wanted to add a new and brilliant chapter to the tradition of Wyoming basketball—a tradition that long has been respected wherever the Rearing Rockies cast their shadows.

* * *

Coach Shelton said it was a pleasure to coach his champions as they won 23 of their 24 regular season games, losing only to Duquesne on their first trip east and on a small, cramping court.

* * *

Wyoming, newly-crowned NCAA champion, won its new laurels in the second tilt of a double header which netted $24,000 for the Red Cross Georgetown's Hoyas, the NCAA runner-up conquered the Toledo Rockets, 54-40, in the other contest. Big John Mahnken and little Jimmy Reilly led the Victors with 20 and 14 points, respectively.

Service Clubs Form League

Pro Players Make Up Army Camp Teams.

BALTIMORE — (AP)— Organized league baseball will continue to be played in the Maryland-District of Columbia-Virginia area, at least — not in spite of the war but because of it.

Soldiers, sailors and coast guardsmen from 12 training centers in the Washington and Baltimore areas have organized two six-team service league to play twice weekly in the various camps from May until September.

And they'll have their own "world series" and all-star game, too The winners of loop-playoffs will tangle for the championship in a seven-game series to be played at Griffith stadium, Washington, and Oriole park Baltimore

The all-star game will bring together picked teams of the two loops in Griffith stadium sometime in July.

Baltimore area teams, which will comprise one circuit, are Curtis Bay Coast Guard Aberdeen Proving Ground Edgewood Arsenal Holabird Ordnance Depot, Fort George G Meade and the Army Air Base

Washington teams include Boling Field, Fort Myer, Fort Washington, Fort Belvoir, the Navy Receiving Station and the Naval Air Station.

* * *

While team rosters are not yet complete, indications are the loop will not be far below double A standards

Take Curtis Bay Coast Guard team, for example.

For pitchers the guardsmen can call on Charlie Platt, late of the Pony league, Francis Smith, a Chicago White Sox rookie, Charlie Bolman, late of the Cleveland Indians; Charlie Sipple, of the Boston Red Sox, and Don Kerr, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, among others.

DOROTHY KIRBY PLAYS IN TOURNEY FINAL

PINEHURST, N. C.—(UP)— Medalist Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., and pre-play favorite Jane Crum of Orangeburg, S. C., meet today in the title match of the 41st North-South women's golf championship.

Miss Kirby won over Mrs. W. O. Boggs, Pittsburgh, 8 and 7, while Miss Crum ousted Mrs. Vare, 4 and 3 in semi-final play yesterday.

Red Wings Swamp Boston Bruins

DETROIT (AP)—Okay so those Detroit Red Wings are frisky and fast, but that doesn't entirely explain what happened to the highly-respected Boston Bruins in Olympia stadium last night

Jack Adams' Red Wings not only defeated Boston in the opening game of the final series for the battered old Stanley cup. They cuffed that feeble old Bruin all around the rink, ran through him for six goals, and generally made a rout of what 12,562 gleeful fans had expected to be a hard-close game. Now they are talking of a Wing victory in four straight games in the best-of-seven series.

Detroit's margin at the end was 6-2, and those six goals constitute the most the Wings have drilled past Goalie Frankie Brimsek in 11 meetings this season. Boston scored in the first period, when it was early, and in the third, when it was too late.

Boston was the tired team last night something the records don't explain The Bruins had a relatively easy time disposing of Montreal in five games in the semi-finals, while Detroit had to go to six games, two of them overtime, to turn back Toronto

An old grudge may have had something to do with the verdict Boston humiliated Detroit two years ago in the cup finals by sweeping four straight games, a whipping none of the old-timers has forgotten

The second game will be played here Sunday night.

GETS SORE ARM

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo —(AP) —The current worry for Manager Luke Sewell of the St. Louis Browns is Pitcher Bob Muncrief, who reported a sore arm after a three-inning workout. That news, however, partly was offset by the four innings of hitless pitching turned in yesterday by Fritz Ostermueller and the encouraging performance of Paul Dean.

Hopes to Cop This Event at Texas Relays

One of the outstanding high jumpers in the nation, Pete Watkins of Texas A. & M., is primed to cop the high jump event at the annual Texas Relays at Austin, Tex., tomorrow, where the outstanding athletes in the southwest will be aiming at Relays crowns. Watkins, who can do nearly six-nine in the high jump, also is a hurdle star. Twenty-seven events are on the big program.

Two Changes In Tourney

Donelson-Chambers Hit Fourth In Doubles.

Only two new duos made the board in the first ten of the Westinghouse doubles tournament at Colony alleys last night, Donelson and Chambers rolling into fourth place, and Staley and Carter taking sixth

Armstrong Meets Beau Jack Tonight

NEW YORK—(AP)— Henry Armstrong, the original buzzsaw, and bouncing Beau Jack, the "reasonable facsimile thereof," cut up some old touches—and each other—for ten rounds or less in Madison Square Garden tonight, and it figures to be quite a party.

As a matter of fact, it looks so entertaining Promoter Mike Jacobs expects some 18 000 to see the floor show, which features the return of Hammerin' Hennery to New York for the first time since the "smarties" wrote his obituary after Fritzie Zivic punched him around for the second time about 14 months ago.

The big-hearted betting boys, always willing to share a bankroll with you—provided it's your bankroll—figure the jumping Jack a 5 to 9 shot to take care of the little brown fighting machine who taught Beau more than one-and-one about the business of busting beaks. But the price-makers aren't nearly as sure now as they were two weeks ago, because they've shaved the odds all the way down from 5 to 17.

* * *

This corner likes Armstrong to make a handsome bowl of applesauce simply because Henry is the original buzzsaw and the jumping Jack is just a good imitation. After a layoff for the better part of a year, Armstrong has won 16 of 18 starts, 11 of them by putting the other guy to sleep.

CRIPPLES RECOVER

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers' cripples rapidly are getting back into shape. Centerfielder Roger Cramer, who has been out with a thumb injury, will be the leadoff batter in the exhibition series with the Cubs this week-end, Manager Steve O'Neill announced.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK — (AP)— Somewhat encouraged by the success of Henry Armstrong's comeback, Al Weill is thinking of bringing Arturo Godoy back, too—if Al ever can get in touch with the Chilean chopping block . . . Armstrong was all through, Weill mantains, but Godoy—well, he did all right against Joe Louis, won a couple of fights afterward and recently took the South American title from Alberto Lovell

RIGHT OVER THE PLATE

During one of the Detroit-Toronto hockey playoff games, Referee Bill Chadwick took an unexpected tumble just on the spot where Bob Davidson had been handed a terrific body check by Jim Orlando . . . Looking for the cause of his downfall, Chadwick found part of a set of crockery teeth . . . Since Davidson denied that they belonged to him, Chadwick is wondering whether some fan had tried to put the bite on him at long range.

SCRAP COLLECTION

Beau Jack, who has April-fooled the fight experts more than once, was 22 years old yesterday . . . Tonight he'll probably get a present from his old friend, Henry Armstrong—a mouth full of leather . . . The Dodgers' ban on gambling didn't keep Leo Durocher from betting one of the Brooklyn scribes a $20 hat that he'll play 18 innings at shortstop this week end . . . Ted Williams, who has had 40 hours in the air since he joined the navy, is so enthusiastic over flying that he plans to have his own plane after the war.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Ben Epstein, Little Rock Arkansas Gazette: "Headline: 'Soldiers over there want baseball resumed over here.' And the managers echo: 'If the boys over there want it played over here,' they'd better leave over there and come over here and play it."

ORDERS COUNTERMANDED

When the Fort Hancock, N. Y., baseball team was playing City College the other day, Hoffman, the sodier first baseman, smacked a triple that almost broke a 4-4 tie, only to get picked off by the hidden ball gag . . . The boys were wondering if he'd get a week in the guard house for it when Joe Osmanski, the former Holy Cross player, fanned with the bases full to end the game in a tie . . . There was no penalty; Osmanski not only is a lieutenant but he's coach of the team.

HAVE LEG PAINS

FRENCH LICK, Ind. — (AP) — Wally Moses, White Sox outfielder, and Julius Solters, who hopes to win back his old left field job, have been suffering leg pains and will miss the Sox trip to Louisville this week-end. They have been ordered to stay home and work out the soreness by hiking.

CLEANUP MAN

CAIRO, Ill. — (AP) — Catcher Walker Cooper already has been earmarked by Manager Billy Southworth for the fourth spot in the St. Louis Cardinals' batting order. "He's fast, a fine hitter and a natural for the place," says Southworth.

Bucks Favored In Tank Meet

Ohio State Enters 16 In A. A. U. Swim Event.

NEW YORK —(UP)— Ninety-six swimmers and divers, representing 21 colleges, other schools, clubs, the navy, army and coast guard, begin competition in the two-day national A. A U swimming championships today with Ohio State's Buckeyes early favorites to complete a grand slam of national aquatic honors.

Ohio State, which now boasts the Big Ten, A.A.U. outdoor and N.C.A.A. titles, has listed 16 men for Friday and Saturday's competition while Yale, defending titleholder, has entered 17 men—biggest contingent in the meet. Michigan, a sleeper entry, has 10.

There will be four defending champions in six events—Alan Ford of Yale, 220-yard freestyle, Kro Nakama, Ohio State, 440-yard free style; Adolph Kiefer, Norfolk naval base, 150-yard backstroke and 300-yard individual medley, and Yale in the 300-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle relay.

Ohio State's freshman star, Bill Smith from Hawaii, will go after his first indoor titles. He set world records in each event in winning the A A U. outdoor 220, 440 and 880 yard titles. In this meet, he is entered in the 100, 220 and 440 freestyle and individual medley as well as relays.

Pirates Seen As Dark Horse

Pitching Staff Makes Onkle Frantz Smile.

MUNCIE, Ind.—(AP)—There's a suspicion that "Onkle Frantz" Frisch's 1943 Pittsburgh Pirates are cooking up an old-fashioned scuttling act against the seven other National league entries this season.

The optimism is not the mere outgrowth of the Buccaneers' having scored 24 runs to none for the two opponents they have encountered so far. The teams the Pirates beat were the Ball State Teachers nine and a local factory array.

The pitching staff does it. Foremost is Truett (Rip) Sewell who in compiling 17 noteworthy triumphs last year had to take 15 beatings.

* * *

Then there's Johnny Lanning, who won six and lost eight; Max Butcher, who took five and dropped eight; Lloyd Dietz, a six and nine man; Bob Klinger with an eight and 11 record in '42 and Hank Gorcki, winner of five and loser of six. And there's a 34-year-old "youngster" Frisch regards highly—Wally Herbert—who averaged 18 wins a season for the past several campaigns with San Diego of the Pacific Coast league.

VANDERBILT MENTOR JOINS NAVY RANKS

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(INS)— Henry R. "Red" Sanders, head football coach and athletic director at Vanderbilt university, today held a lieutenant's commission in the navy's Tom Hamilton physical program.

Sanders was ordered to report April 22 to the North Carolina Pre-flight school at Chapel Hill for an indoctrination course.

Herc Alley, commodore and coach for the last three years, was believed to be a leading candidate for Sanders' post.

Hergatts Cut Cab Margin

Margaret Baker Rolls High Total In League.

Hergatt Lettering scored a shutout win last night in the women's Commercial "A" league at Colony alleys, trimming the Safety Cab lead to two games as the Cabs dropped a 1-2 decision.

Margaret Baker rolled high total of 536 including a 196 game, but missed high game by one pin as Mary Costin hit a 197.

LIKES NORTH

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y.—(AP) —Manager Leo Durocher, his face as straight as a yardstick, says his Brooklyn Dodgers are further advanced physically now than if they were training in Florida.

"Durability, arms, wind—all are better," he maintains.

The Dodgers haven't missed a single day of practice.

GIVES PREVIEW

FRENCH LICK, Ind. — (AP) — Big Paul Derringer has jumped the spring fashion parade by appearing in the new 1943 Cub uniform, a conservative outfit compared with gaudy raiment of the past several years. Paul was allowed to stage the preview because the club didn't have an old uniform large enough for him.

Keltner Has Back Injury

Misses Kennedy Curve In Batting Practice.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Third Baseman Ken Keltner was a training camp casualty today as the Cleveland Indians boarded a train for Muncie, Ind., where they will engage the Pittsburgh Pirates in a pair of week-end exhibition games.

* * *

Keltner strained a back muscle yesterday when he swung at one of Vernon Kennedy's curves in a batting practice session. Trainer Lefty Weisman said the injury would keep him out of the Saturday and Sunday contests with the Pirates. Keltner's place will be taken by rookie Eddie Turchin.

Fabian Gaffke's decision to quit baseball left the Indians with only three bona fide outfielders for the Pirate series.

Manager Lou Boudreau learned of Gaffke's action yesterday when he found a note which read: "This is a lousy thing to do but it is best and I must do it. When you read this I'll be on my way home. I'm no good for anything but a bush league, playing about once a week I'm going to work."

Boudreau tried by long distance telephone to change Gaffke's mind but without success. He also phoned news of the outfielder's desertion to Vice-President Roger Peckinpaugh with a plea that another fly chaser be obtained at once.

This sent Joe Vosmik's stock booming again. The former Indian is with Minneapolis of the American association. To date the Tribe management has refused to pay more than the waiver price of $7,500 for Vosmik.

* * *

Boudreau has picked a veteran pitching array to work against the Pirates Jim Bagby, Al Milnar and Ray Poat will perform in Saturday's game while Chubby Dean, Mel Harder and Al Smith will take the mound Sunday.

Army May Get More Red Stars

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — General Manager Warren C. Giles, pleased with their present condition, says the Cincinnati Reds have a good chance to challenge the St. Louis Cardinals for the National league pennant.

However, Giles tempered the thought with a reminder that Uncle Sam hasn't called the last ball player to service yet. Johnny Vander Meer, Mike McCormick, and Bert Haas, all regulars, are hardly draft-proof.

* * *

Giles also disclosed that Gee Walker, holdout left fielder getting the silent treatment down in Florida, had written asking for a little more money and had been told that the Reds' most recent offer was final.

CIPHER CLERK'S ONLY GIRL AT U. S. AIR BASE

But Life Among Hundreds of American Fliers Differs From Hollywood Version.

(By Associated Press)

AT U. S. BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—(Delayed)—A husky, dark-haired good-looking English girl named Marjory Allen has a spot a lot of American girls would give their last pair of nylons for: She's the only girl among the hundreds of American fliers at this station.

She holds her unique status because she's a WAAF—a member of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force—attached to the nucleus of RAF liaison officers left here when the RAF turned the station over to the Eighth U. S. air force.

She's a cipher clerk, coding and decoding operational messages; she eats in the officers' mess and spends free evenings around the officers' club; and is billeted at a farm a couple of miles away, where, if she is lucky, a passing Jeep from the station picks her up and chauffeurs her to work in the morning.

You may have seen Marjory if you were a transatlantic traveler before the war, because she used to run the gift shops on the Queen Mary and the Aquitania.

When the war started she was at sea on the Aquitania bound for England. The German liner Bremen had left New York just before them. "We quite expected her to be waiting in the middle of the ocean for us," she says.

Having lived in Westcliffe, at the mouth of the Thames, experienced the zeppelin bombings in the World war and watched German planes laying mines in this war, she says, she got more action before she got into the service than since.

She got the assignment here by volunteering when they asked for girls who'd like to work with the Americans.

"I like Americans," she says "I like American cigarets and American food. And rum and coke."

She likes working with the American fliers, but still is slightly amazed at the amount of kidding they do. "I always take anything they say with a large lump of salt," she says.

Her corner of femininity at the station doesn't yield as many romantic opportunities as probably would be depicted in a Hollywood version of the situation featuring Veronica Lake. The station is pretty well preoccupied from breakfast to bedtime with the job of dropping bombs on the Axis. And when the boys get leaves, they like to go to town, so while Marjory gets plenty of dates, she doesn't net much better than a girl on the outside.

Her favorite memory is the three sisters of King Zog of Albania, the ones who used to go around in sailor suits.

"They looked like a comedy team," she says. "They had a maid who went around with them and kept bowing and walking backwards. It tickled me so I forgot to call them madame."

More than 90 per cent of American shipyard workers had to be trained for their present jobs

MORGENTHAU TO OFFER STABLE MONEY PLAN

Will Present 4-Point Program To Three Senate Groups Next Monday.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., will present to an extraordinary joint session of three senate committees next Monday a four-point tentative plan for post-war international currency stabilization.

It was also learned from treasury sources that all Latin American nations except Argentina have been invited to participate with the United Nations in Washington conferences on a final stabilization program to which all the conferring countries would be parties.

The tentative monetary proposals, to be presented in executive session to the senate's finance, foreign relations and special post-war planning committees, will be based on these principles:

1. Provision for orderly adjustment of currency values that may be necessitated by basic changes in the economic and monetary position of some countries after the war.

2. Freeing the balance of payments of a number of countries from pressures they can not and probably will not bear.

3. Provision of machinery for maintenance of stable exchange rates while nations adjust themselves to changes in their international economic position.

4. Provision of a mechanism under which exchange rate changes can be effected by multilateral international agreements.

Treasury officials have been working with state department and other government officials for a year on a post-war stabilization plan.

When Morgenthau appears before the senate committees, he is expected also to lay the ground work for his future request that the exchange stabilization fund of $2,000,000,000 and the president's power to devalue the dollar be extended for another two years beyond June 30. It was disclosed authoritatively, in this connection, that the administration does not now contemplate further devaluation below the present 59 per cent gold content.

FACTS ON RENTS FOR LANDLORDS, THEIR TENANTS

Statement From Director For Area Lists Regulations and Rules of Control Plan.

Facts which he said both the landlord and the tenant should know were made known in a statement today by Lester Redding, rent director for the Mansfield defense rental area. The area includes Ashland, Richland, Crawford and Knox counties.

Rent control regulations govern all housing accommodations, except farmer occupied, wherever people live and pay rent whether in houses, apartments, flats, tenements, rooms, hotels, fraternity houses, boarding houses, auto camps or trailers, he pointed out.

Redding explained that properties or housing accommodations within any of these categories must be registered by the owners or agents at the Area Rent Control office. Except in cases of deliberate evasion, registrations may yet be filed without penalty even though the registration period has expired. The registrant is required to submit an affidavit giving the reason for late filing.

The landlord should know, Redding said, the following facts concerning rent control regulations:

The landlord must file an official registration statement with the area rent office covering all dwelling quarters for which he collects rent.

He must file a form if there is a change in tenacy of houses and apartments, obtain the new tenant's signature to it, and show him a copy of the registration form.

He cannot evict a tenant without notifying the Area Rent office even if the lease calls for vacating the premises at the termination of the lease.

He must give the tenant a receipt for his rent if he wants it; or the tenant can legally refuse to pay rent unless he does.

He must keep posted in all rooms of hotels and rooming houses and boarding houses a schedule of legal rents for different terms of occupancy.

He may petition for an increase of rents or a reduction of services under special circumstances.

If he charges more than the legal rent, the tenant may sue and he may have to pay triple the overcharge as damages to the tenant. For violation of the rent regulations he may also be punished by a maximum fine of $5,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both.

Facts which tenants should be acquainted with as listed by the director, are:

No matter what living quarters the tenant rents—in a house, apartment, hotel, or boarding house, parking space in a trailer camp or a bed in a dormitory—the rent he pays is subject to federal rent regulations.

When this area was put under rent control, the area rent director sent to each tenant a copy of the landlord's legal registration showing the rent he claimed was being paid on the maximum rent date.

Landlords must show each new tenant the official copy of the rent registration showing the legal rent for the accommodations rented.

As a general rule, the tenant does not have to pay more than the rent paid on the maximum rent date which in this area is March 1, 1942.

An exception to the general rule applies when substantial improvements have been made in the premises.

The tenant must not pay more than the maximum legal rent even if he wants to do so.

He may not be evicted by his landlord for any reason until the area rent office is notified.

He cannot be charged extra for some service formerly included in the rent.

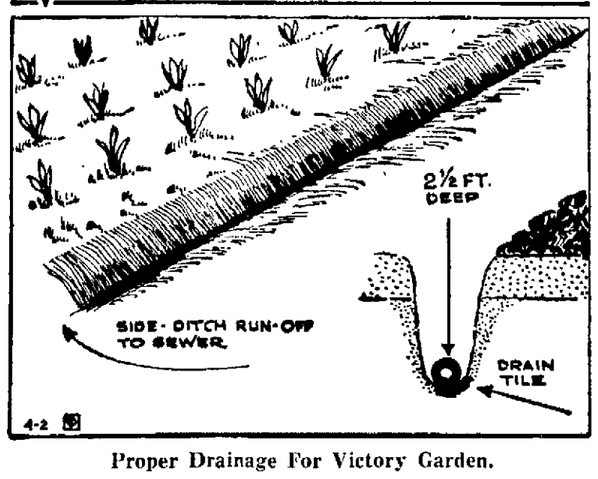
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Proper Drainage For Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released By Central Press Assn.)

A wet garden—even a Victory garden—will not grow good vegetables. When water stands anywhere in the top two feet of the garden the soil becomes cold, soggy and so poorly aerated that the beneficial bacterial activity ceases and the plants are likely to rot and die. If water stands on the surface soil for more than two hours after a heavy rainfall it indicates that additional drainage is required.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, a side-ditch run-off is an effective, yet inexpensive method of providing supplementary drainage for the garden. The depth of a side-ditch will vary according to conditions. The ditch should drain into a sewer, nearby creek or even a deeply dug hole filled with stones.

The best method for a permanent drainage system is by tiling, as illustrated. If the area to be drained is small, a single line of drain tile will serve. The tile should be laid 2½ feet deep. For large areas do not place the lines of tiles less than 25 or 30 feet apart. The drains must lead to an outlet and should have a fall of three inches in every 100 feet. Cover the joints with several inches of cinders or gravel.

Sometimes the problem of drainage can be solved by merely breaking up the sub-soil so that water will drain away through it.

RAILS RETAIN POPULARITY IN DAY'S TRADING

Retail Spending Throughout Nation Declines From Last Year's Mark.

NEW YORK — Rails retained their popularity in today's early stock market proceedings but many industrials inclined to give ground.

Up fractions at an active opening were Bethlehem, Western Union and Twentieth Century-Fox. Small losses were posted for U. S. Steel, General Electric, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Sperry and International Harvester.

Market observers noted the survey of Dun & Bradstreet estimating this week's retail spending throughout the nation fell 9 to 15 per cent below the comparable 1942 period. It was recalled, though, that the final pre-Easter purchasing rush was under way at this time a year ago.

UNWED MOTHER DROWNS BABIES

Young Denver Woman Calmly Tells of Killing Three Infants.

(By International News Service)

DENVER—Tiny paper caskets and sheafs of sentimental sonnets were seized as state's evidence today in the case of a beautiful young unwed mother who, detectives said, confessed that three times she gave birth to babies, drowned them and hid their bodies in a hope chest.

The mother, Miss Bernice Williams, a buyer of infants' wear in a Denver department store, showed no sign of emotion as she calmly related her story to Captain of Detectives James E. Childers.

The detective quoted Miss Williams as saying she had no physician to attend her and kept the births and killings a secret from her friends and her mother, who lived in the same apartment with her when the last baby was born, Feb. 11.

"No one but me knew about them until today—not even their fathers," she told Captain Childers.

The secret was revealed by Noah Layton, caretaker of Miss Williams' apartment house, who discovered the first body in a chest in a locker assigned to Miss Williams and her mother and called authorities who located the other two.

"The first one, a girl, was born in April, 1941," Capt Childers quoted Miss Williams as saying. "The second, also a girl, was born in February, 1942. Both of these were by the same father, but he never knew. The third, born last Feb. 11, was a boy."

ARMY WARNS OF FURLOUGH FRAUD

Tells Wives, Relatives to Beware "Trip Home" Solicitations.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The U. S. Army Second Service command today warned of a new racket in which wives, mothers, sweethearts and sisters of soldiers have been cheated of amounts ranging from $5 to $10 on the promise of a final trip home by loved ones due to go overseas.

The solicitations are made in the name of the "soldier-relatives" unit of the army by a person illegally wearing an army uniform and using the name of "Sgt Gallagher," the army said. Donations are asked to cover the cost of "fare home" for the final furlough.

REJECTS BOOST IN TAX SPLIT

House Keeps City and County Share of Sales Tax To $12,000,000 Figure.

tioned to the various political subdivisions by the Richland county budget commission. In past years, Kelley said, the amount has been in the neighborhood of $45,000 annually.

Mansfield's healthy financial condition, however, has not made it necessary to actually seek state subsidies, Kelley declared.

Richland county and its subdivisions, exclusive of Mansfield, received approximately $68,000 last year, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's office reported.

Last year, with the state's surplus estimated at more than $40,000, Gov. Bricker refused requests from numerous sorely-pressed counties for additional appropriations of sales tax funds

The house finance committee slashed $2,967,667 from Gov. Bricker's biennial appropriation bill setting the figure at $366,756,254. It was to be introduced at today's skeleton session of the house.

The house today was to hold its first Friday session in its 13 weeks of existence, to receive from the finance committee the general appropriations bill, amended to make 10 per cent increases to more than 20,000 state employes retroactive to the first of this year.

Chairman Paul Ballard (R-Jackson) declared that the raises would go to all employes, not only those who earn less than $2,000 annually. He pointed out that the $2,817,500 provided for each year of the biennium for pay raises was sufficient only to care for those earning less than $2,000 a year, but that there were sufficient amounts in the departments' appropriatons to provide similar raises to the employes in the higher brackets.

"In going over the appropriations," the committee chairman said, "and in checking with the departments and the finance director, we find that all departments are given sufficient funds in the big bill to provide comparable increases for those earning more than $2,000.

Both Finance Director Herbert Defenbacher and State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt, who has a guiding hand in the financial program of the state government, echoed Ballard's statements, and reiterated that increases for all were being sponsored by Governor Bricker.

Thus the governor has taken a more generous stand than he took in his January inaugural address, when he stated flatly that no raise should go to those earning more than $2,000, and that no raise result in salaries in excess of $2,000.

Fulton, whose condition today is reported as satisfactory, was working at the farm of Roscoe Schwan, on the Lucas-Mifflin road, when the accident occurred. The hand was mangled and practically severed before he was released from the machinery.

PLANES POUND FLEEING NAZIS IN TUNISIA

Junction Between British, U. S. Troops Reported Near as Patton Pushes East.

They encountered heavy fire from enemy machine-gun nests and 88-millimeter artillery positions.

Progress of the American forces was slowed down considerably by minefields planted near fields of daisies and partially concealed by the flowers.

French units accompanied the British first army in its slow push east of Sedjenane on the road to Bizerte.

For the first time in several weeks, there was no mention of the British Eighth army in the official communique. This was taken as indication that British forces north of Gabes are being regrouped while supplies are brought up from the rear. At the same time they are getting an opportunity to catch their breath in preparation for the next smash. These are familiar Montgomery tactics.

East of El Guetar, Spitfires strafed enemy trucks and blew up ammunition dumps along Gumtree road other Spitfires drove off Focke-wulfs and Messerschmitts attacking our troops.

Three of four junkers—88s were shot down by the Spitfires in the El Guetar area. One Spitfire pilot flew into the tail of an enemy bomber and cut it off.

A communique from headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announcing a further advance by the first army said that although the Tunisian front was generally quieter Allied patrols were very active over the whole area.

(An unsubstantiated report by the Algiers radio said that American and French forces had established contact with the British Eighth army in an eastward drive from El Guetar toward Gabes. The Algiers bulletin, picked up by Reuter's said that the junction was made after Axis forces had retreated from the El Guetar sector.)

The enemy-held naval base of Bizerte was attacked by Allied bombers which centered their assault on the dock area.

Dispatches from the front said that the American armored and infantry column under command of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., was making steady progress toward Gabes from the El Guetar region despite harassing tactics by the Germans.

Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel moved up strong mobile artillery batteries and concentrations of crack tank units but failed to halt the relentless American push to join the British Eighth army pressing northward from Gabes along the coast road.

(American troops have smashed their way through the Bimbrabatt pass and are advancing rapidly toward a junction with the British which probably will occur today if it has not already been effected, the London Daily Mail said.)

Expect Last Ditch Stand In Tunisia

LONDON —(AP)— The smashing 300-plane Flying Fortress raid on Sardinia was interpreted here today as defining the possible route and probable fate of any Axis attempt to duplicate Dunkirk in a retreat from Tunisia, but unofficial observers suggested it was more likely the Nazis would fight to the death under orders from Adolf Hitler to buy more time for defense of the continent.

Despite the cost in men and material, and its effect on the morale of the German people, such a stand would fit the recent defense-mindedness displayed by Hitler and his general staff when faced with the gathering power of the Allied onslaught.

Reports reaching here from Bern indicate Hitler already may have given Marshal Rommel orders to hold to the last man, but Rommel probably will not be sacrificed.

These reports indicated Rommel would be named commander in chief of the whole southern European coast — which Prime Minister Churchill called the "soft underbelly of Europe" — and would direct defenses from the Italian shore to Spain.

That would be a considerable departure from Hitler's previous policy. The German fuehrer has shown little use for defeated generals.

Weather Holds Up RAF Birthday Raid

LONDON—(UP)— Bad weather over Europe last night prevented the Royal Air Force from winding up its 25th anniversary celebration with another block-buster raid on Germany.

The only RAF birthday raids were daylight attacks yesterday on railway targets in western Germany, France and Belgium. Four planes were lost.

A flight of swift Mosquito bombers swept 350 miles across occupied France into Western Germany to pound the railway workshops at Trier and the railway yards at Ehrang.

WAR WORK HALTED

NEWARK —(INS)— Work was halted at the Charles E. Schuler Engineering company when 60 machinists walked out. Engaged in war work, the company now has before the National War Labor board a petition asking permission to grant a wage increase, officials asserted.

Seize Survivors of Blasted Jap Convoy

LONDON —(AP)— Reuters, in a dispatch from an advanced Allied base in New Guinea, reported today special Australian patrols on Goodenough and the Trobriand islands had captured hundreds of Japanese survivors from smashed convoys in the Bismarck sea.

More than 100 of the Japanese were killed when they offered resistance, the dispatch said.

Goodenough island lies about 50 miles off the southeastern tip of Papua and the Trobriand islands are situated another 90 miles to the northeast.

Grand Jury Panel Indicts 13; Clears Death Car Driver

talling approximately $145, from the CCC Motor Freight depot, Jan. 19.

Alex Teevens, 72-year-old County Home inmate, was charged with intent to wound after an affray at the home March 25 when he allegedly knifed Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brady, an orderly and nurse.

Richard Lee, colored, was indicted for burglary as a result of a charge booked against him for breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny at the Charles E. Reed home, 262 Parkway drive.

True bills charging them with operating motor vehicles without the owners' consents were booked against two Knox county men, Fred Ewers and Daniel Sweet.

Four men will face non-support counts as a result of the grand jury probes. They are: Cecil Westerfield, Keith Marion Knowlton, Robert Richard and Talmar Ricker.

Beginning their deliberations shortly before noon yesterday after getting a late start because of a necessary substitution on the panel, the jurors returned their report about 5 p. m. after having taken time out around 3 p. m. to make their usual inspection visit at the county jail.

Reiterating appeals of former grand jurors, Foreman Gus A. Baer indicated that the panel would recommend that county commissioners provide enlarged quarters for women and a padded detention cell for use of insane persons who must be held there pending examination and subsequent removal to institutions.

Gets Training Only Few Miles From Ohio Home

AVON, O. —(AP)— Unlike most other youths inducted into the service, William Morris Sample, 18, of Avon, won't see many new sights during his period of preliminary training. A naval aviation cadet inducted last October, Sample has been assigned to Baldwin-Wallace college at Berea, just a few miles from his home, for his pre-flight training.

The son of Thomas L. Sample, local justice of the peace, the former Avon high school athlete will begin training at Berea with 30 other men from the Fifth naval aviation headquarters at Detroit, Mich. Following completion of his course there he will be sent to Iowa State.

Sample was captain of the county championship six-man football team in 1941, and winner of his school's athletic medal. He was graduated in 1942.

Sub Sinking Big Thrill for Mansfielder, 17, In Navy a Year

submerged sub at considerable distance off side of our vessel," the young seaman described.

"Every man was called to his post, and let go when the command came to 'fire,' the 'fore' gun, of which crew I was a member. We fired twice, and about that time the 'aft' gun took two cracks at it.

"We heard a terrific explosion which let us know some of the shots had found their mark. Then we saw oil on the water a few seconds later."

As thrilling as the submarine sinking was McLaughlin's hazardous approach to New York harbor during a heavy fog.

"Approaching New York on March 16 was really something," he began. "Not that thrill of seeing the Statue of Liberty or anything like that for we couldn't see anything.

"We ran into the heaviest fog you ever saw and the first thing we knew we had run into the middle of a convoy. Ships were going every which way.

"One would cut across in front of us, another would appear too close alongside and others cut across our bow. We were expecting to hit or be hit almost every minute, but luckily we came through unscathed."

"We found out later we had run into the convoy almost at right angle to its course," the seaman said.

Government regulations prohibited the youth from naming his vessel and giving out other confidential information.

McLaughlin was inducted into the navy in Cleveland, last April 29, one day after his 17th birthday. After "boot" training at Newport, R. I., he had gunnery training at Little Creek, Va.

After leaving New York July 17, he made port in Cuba, South Africa, India, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, the Canal Zone, Cuba again and finally New York, he said.

"I bought several gifts for my relatives and friends in Australia," McLaughlin told, "but they were confiscated by customs officers. They said everything would be returned before we sailed but we sailed right away, so it just looks like I came out the loser."

McLaughlin said he spent a month in India and about three weeks in Ceylon, the longest stops until he got to the Canal Zone, where he spent a month and a half.

His uniform bears stripes for service in America, European, Middle Eastern, African, Asiatic and Pacific combat areas.

"We had to stand watch, of course, but we had liberty every other day while in port which provided enough time to look over the sights.

"I saw a lot of interesting things, but right now I can't think of anything more interesting than seeing the sights around the old home town," he concluded.

McLaughlin would have graduated this June from Mansfield Senior High school had he not quit to enlist last April. He knew nothing of the high school's plan to grant diplomas to service men who quit to enter the service, but thought "it would be a good idea."

"I wasn't thinking about anything like that when I enlisted, so I don't know how my prospects are for getting a diploma. Maybe I quit too soon," he commented.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Designed for delightful reading for children are the two new books which will appear in the children's section of the Mansfield Public library Saturday. "Knuckles Down" by Fran Martin is a story of boys and marbles written for boys in the middle grades. "Time to Laugh" is a collection of humorous tales selected by Phyllis Fenner.

"Knuckles Down," by Fran Martin is a story of Dindiddle Tyler, who has always been known as Dinks before he went to his grandfather's to live that spring. He hadn't liked the name because the other boys so often called him Dinky Daddles. In Clearbrook though his grandfather assumed that he would be a marble champion as his father had been and that his championship was the reason for his name. The story tells of his friendships with new boys and of his struggle to earn his name at marbles.

Miss Fenner says people laugh in the same language no matter how differently they may speak. She also is aware of the importance of laughter to one's well-being. Therefore, she has chosen the "Tune To Laugh" stories from the folklore of many countries and has collected them under this appropriate title.

Told by Distillers to Ration Liquor, State Action Looming

that Ohio is being discriminated against in the distribution of limited liquor supplies.

Gov. Bricker asked the distillers directly why it was "that you can buy liquor in other states more easily than in Ohio."

O'Brien replied that it was because in some "open" or non-monopoly states jobbers had speculated and built up big inventories while in Ohio there is just one jobber—the state.

"But," O'Brien continued, "what has been true in the past is increasingly untrue as each day passes, for the supplies in those states are rapidly being depleted."

O'Brien said that distillers are giving each state its mathematical proportion of liquor based on purchases of a year ago.

'Chutists Reports Called Unrest Screen

LONDON —(AP)— German radio reports about the activity of British parachute troops in Denmark and Norway, while interesting as an admission that the British have their own men operating in those countries, were regarded by some observers today as a Nazi attempt to cover up increasing native sabotage and unrest within the countries and to allow imposition of even sharper restrictions.

For the second time in five weeks the German-controlled Friesland radio station last night told how armed British chutists blew up a factory in Denmark, and the announcer complained of 'the collaboration of the Danes."

(In New York the Columbia Broadcasting System last night recorded a German radio assertion that "things have got to such a pitch that armed British parachutists can force their way into Danish industrial plants and persuade the guards to keep quiet while they plant bombs. . . . It means that the precaution taken by the Nazi authorities isn't sufficient.")

The reports of Danish sabotage came even as the Germans imposed severe curfew restrictions on the Hardanger Vidda plateau in western Norway where British and Norwegian parachute troops were reported in Stockholm dispatches to have established a mountain base.

The London Daily Herald printed a dispatch which said thousands of young Lithuanian peasants were waging guerrilla warfare in open revolt against their German overlords. Hundreds of students from Vilna and Kovno, and even some professors, were reported to have joined the demonstrators.

Greece was furnishing more reports of increasing sabotage, the latest relating damage to German planes in an Athens repair shop which caused them to crash on their first flight.

A Reuters report from Zurich said that a Bulgarian anti-Fascist had obtained a post in the German U-boat yards in the Black sea port of Sozopot and "headed a plot by which three U-boats were sunk on their trial trips and 70 Germans on board perished."

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Any method of giving change in ration stamps other than using the one-point red ration stamp was termed "definitely illegal" today by the regional office of price administration.

The OPA made this announcement after reporting information had been revised here that some of the larger stores in Cincinnati were manufacturing "their own little slips of paper" which they were handing in lieu of one-point stamps to housewives.

Urging every investor and wage earner to help the county meet its goal, Brunner, chairman of the county Victory Fund committee, said: "Everyone of us is asked to accept a personal responsibility for the success of this great undertaking. By investing as much as possible in government securities we play our part in winning two wars—the war against the Axis and the one against price inflation in which our best weapon is thrift.

"Your money invested in bonds does two things. It supplies the government with funds today which will become your funds tomorrow when you need them most."

benefit payments from either parity or maximum prices.

"If by this bill," Mr. Roosevelt said in his veto message, "you force an increase in the cost of the basic food stuffs, and as a result the national war labor board increases wages, no one can tell where increases will start or what those increased wages will ultimately cost the farmers and all the people of the nation."

He said the Bankhead bill would not help the farmer with his immediate war difficulties and would make "the winning of the war more difficult and gravely imperil our chances of winning the peace."

"The time has come when all of us—farmers, workers, managers and investors—must realize that we cannot improve our living standards in a period of total war," the president said. "On the contrary, we must all cut our standards of living for the duration."

Mr. Roosevelt said farmers already enjoy a "relatively favorable position" in the nation's war time economic structure and said he did not believe the American farmer wanted inflation.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

CHAPTER II

"I told you dad ordered it. Me, I would have kicked you out for good. But you know how it is—the government is short-handed. Needs architects, and has to keep even the bad ones, ho hum. I brought you a book. And a box of candy. Eat it; you are looking thin."

That's the way he was. Dominant, but teasing with it. Quiet mannered but a little boyish withal. Rosemary often wondered if he were really 40, as office gossip had it. Funny, about his mustache and his hair. The mustache was definitely black and so was the hair on top his head, but there was gray edging on his temples. It all made him look so distinguished.

It suddenly occurred to Rosemary that the way to get information was to ask for it. Things are done that way in Washington.

"Do you mind telling me how old you are," she dared, after thanking him for the gifts.

"I do not."

She waited a moment, her long eye lashes lifted. He pretended great interest in the flowing landscape outside.

"But—well, why don't you tell me, then?" She said that spunkily. She wouldn't let him get her goat!

He acted pompous. "You haven't asked me."

"Oh." She entered the mood. "Very well, Mr. William St. Clair, Miss Rosemary L-Lee—" she hesitated, nervously, over her own name, and for good reason. "—of the architectual office, aviation division, wishes to know your age. Memoriandum six, Form seven two nine!"

"I am 31."

"Oh!"

"Oh?"

"I—excuse me, Mr. St. Clair. I —" All at once Rosemary felt frightened again. Imagine acting flip with the Little Boss. It would have been heresy, back in town. Then suddenly they both laughed.

"This scowl of mine, Rosemary," he was beaming now, "I keep on tab for executive purposes. But it comes in handy for frightening little children as well. You see?"

He made a terrible grimace then: cutting up.

"Moreover, my dear Rosemary, these gray hairs are a family heritage. I had a few at age 18. I shall have more of them. I may soon take to dyeing them in self defense."

"Oh. Please don't!"

That slipped out, too, but she wasn't afraid of him any more.

"Don't? Very well, if you prefer me venerable."

"You aren't venerable. You're fun!"

"Now that I like. Fun! Come to think of it, I haven't had any fun lately. Not in months. Until now, I mean. I find it fun to tease you. Do you mind?"

"You ought to play more. You probably need it, Mr. St. Clair."

"An old man? Playing?"

"Don't be silly! It isn't patriotic to kill yourself working. Recreation is very important. You said that yourself."

He spoke loftily again, but with twinkling eye. "I was lecturing the office personnel. The, ah, younger employes."

"Will you stop it! I didn't mean to suggest that you are old awhile ago. I merely asked your age."

"But definitely you showed surprise at my mere 31 years. And do I really look 50?" He studied himself elaborately in the tiny mirror between the Pullman seats. "Hmmm, senility sure enough!"

They laughed again, and she picked up the book he had given her.

"It's a sort of American Baedecker," he explained. "It is the new State Guide, for the state where you are going. Done by the federal writers' project, you know. Factual and fascinating. I give it to you to educate your brain, and the candy to make you forgive me."

"Forgive you?" She looked her surprise.

"Surely, Rosemary. For saying you need educating."

"But I do! I've never been west before. Never!"

He smiled again, and she told herself he resembled Ronald Colman, only he had gentler eyes. "You must have read about the wild west, or seen it in the movies."

"Am I, then, to pack six-guns, Mr. St. Clair?"

"Who knows? Listen, young lady—where you are going, time has been very lazy. It still loiters back about 1880, in many ways. This train whizzing through is still a phenomenon there. But when we get through with the place—man-oh-man!"

"Are we going to upset the natives, or something?"

"Definitely."

"I think you're still kidding me, but it's all right. You'll be telling me to look out for my scalp, next. And does the stagecoach driver still fight bandits in Skeleton Gulch?"

He smiled broadly. "That country is wilder than you think."

"Shame to have to tame it."

"It won't be easy, perhaps."

He said that last more seriously. Months later, Rosemary recalled it and the rare prophecy it held.

"There's scenery," he went on.

"I'll love that."

"The kind you see on calendar prints. The—the 'impossible' kind, more real than the worst art prints. More colorful than the grossest exaggerations."

"Oh."

"Majestic blue mountains, Rosemary. Snow caps. Waterfalls. Sometimes green forests, sometimes desert-like for many miles. Deer. Antelope. Even a few grizzly bears left. That's the region we have to make war conscious! Didn't dad warn you it would be a hard job?"

She nodded. All at once she realized she wasn't being sent out to the sticks. She was going on a Grand Mission—to help a distinguished architect create America's greatest cadet training field. Out to a west where—where—yes, by cricket, he had said so—the deer and the antelope and the cowboys roam! The land of promise, of room-enough, of life anew like the pioneers wanted, and like herself wanted now. Maybe, by some favor of fate, trouble wouldn't follow her here. Maybe she could keep her secret long enough to think it calmly through, in new surroundings.

He talked on, genially, informally, painting the picture of a western America that he obviously loved. She gazed out the train window, lulled by the steady clacking of the wheels.

"I hope you aren't too lonely," he was saying, presently. "They are different from eastern people in many ways, but you can soon love them. I want you to be happy there."

"I promise to," she said.

"Whatever that man did to you in Washington," he avoided her eyes, but she was astonished at the way he had read her mood, "don't carry the hurt out west. Leave it this side of the Mississippi, Rosemary."

On quick impulse he squeezed her hand, and she could have cried again at the way he smiled; cried for gratitude now.

"I'll be getting along," he added, rising. "Read the book, all day. Tomorrow we discuss it if you're a mind. If we've got to build all the barracks and school buildings and hangars and whatever for a training field, and do all the thinking—" he left off, and turned his handsome head side to side in appreciation of the monumental task before them. "But we can do it. It's a year when impossible things are being done."

Then he was gone down the train aisle. She wished he had stayed. She watched his fine back, saw him smile at the conductor bustling through, saw him greet a pair of youthful soldiers, saw him disappear through the end door.

Thirty-one! She'd write back about that, to the office. It would be real news to the other girls, and to the men of the staff as well. Little Boss, age 31.

Chin on her hand, lower lip tucked in, smiling with just a hint of devilishness that had been the Rosemary Lee of a month ago, she quite forgot her critical problem momentarily, quite forgot Harry Boyle. She looked out the window and saw how beautiful is the open country. How beautiful, how promising, how clean.

Day-dreaming thus, she felt something faintly tingling inside her. Something perhaps forbidden, but just sweet enough to be encouraged. The Pullman wheels which had sounded almost a somber dirge at departure last evening, now were clickety-clacking a merry tune of prophesy.

Option did not live up to its promise.

"Pop. 2,500," a guide book had said. "Mining and lumbering: equable climate; alt. 4,128; noted for good churches, schools, and friendly progressive citizens." Rosemary, an eastern girl new in the west, found everything confusing.

"But there's got to be lumber, and bricks, and all that!" she declared to the local committee of 12 meeting with her. She emphasized the got.

"Yes'm, but they just ain't," a two-fisted town mayor in a leather jacket answered. "You see, miss, there is a mill, up in the forest. And rightly it had a whole yard of good cured lumber. But it's been hauled away these three weeks. A stranger come in and bought everything."

"I don't care. That aviation field has got to be built at once. With headquarters, and hangars, and school rooms, and barracks for the men."

"But there ain't materials!"

"I don't care!"

I don't care. A woman's answer. Illogical, but uncompromising. The mayor of Option grinned, and so did the men around him. Rosemary looked defiant.

An insurance man spoke up, hopefully.

"If there was just some way to hold 'em for a while—we could get new materials in five, six months, Miss Lee."

"No! Uncle Sam can't wait. There's a war on. Don't you understand? We've got to have the new training field as soon as possible."

They grinned again. This Miss Lee—cute little trick out of Washington—was plenty full of pepper, but facts are facts.

"If you don't help me," Rosemary said frantically, "I—well I'll just go to another town, that's all! I can do it! I represent the architects' office. Mr. St. Clair sent me here to do this and he'll back me up! He's my boss. If—if—" She decided an appeal to civic pride was her best bet. "If you don't want all the good business that a new training field will bring, then some other town will want it!"

* * *

The mayor looked a little devilish. "Might try Lightning," said he. "It's got more houses than Option, I know. It had 12,000 people once, although I can't be sure how many it's got just now!"

The men all grinned broadly. But Rosemary's chin lifted. "All right, I will try Lightning, then. Is—is it near here?"

"It's the next closest town, ma'am. Up in Purple Canyon, hardly 12 miles out. It's closer'n we are to your airport site, in fact."

She stopped the conference quickly, after that. She was sick of them anyway. Their too benevolent, too tolerant attitude, as if she were a child. She wished she hadn't dressed in chic sport clothes, she should have worn a coat suit and spectacles on a black ribbon. She wished Little Boss were here. "You get off and start the ball rolling, Rosemary," he had ordered. "I must have three hours in San Francisco, then I'll rush right back and join you." She had left him, with high confidence, that sundown at the door of the Pullman.

And now if he came back today she would have no progress to show him. Only disappointment, for themselves as well as for the government. This air field was an urgent matter. Somebody had betrayed a trust—she knew that now; that somebody was named Boyle. He had sold Uncle Sam a bill of goods. The purchasing department back in Washington—that's where Harry Boyle rated—had assured them that abundant building materials were at hand. But now—

Rosemary wanted to cry again. Not so much in personal hurt this time, not so much of what Harry Boyle had done to her own heart; but now in sheer desperate anger, and determination to thwart him at all costs.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1943.

When our men come home, we must be prepared to welcome them not merely with guaranties of security from economic want. There can be no question of that. We must see to it that the country they have fought to defend is a land of broad economic opportunity—a land where every man and woman has the right to work and get ahead.—Thomas E. Dewey.

Congress Fumbles Taxation Football

ANY IDEA that the practices of democracy are as admirable as its principles is likely to be dispelled by taking a look at some of politics-ridden "agencies of government" that are now jeopardizing the national war effort—and the future of America.

Congress, for instance, is split in an entirely partisan way on the subject of taxes, arguing between tweedledum and tweedledee as to whether earnings in 1942 or in 1943 should be made the basis for calculation of income taxes to be paid this year—with collection of billions of dollars of taxes delayed as a result of nonsensical bickering on the part of representatives who were chosen because of presumed superior intelligence.

Preference has been expressed by a large majority of the American people for a pay-as-you-go tax plan, with indication of willingness to extend to the extreme limit in paying taxes to meet war costs . . . but there has been no public sanctioning of tax increases to provide funds for non-military expenditures or to finance this administration's rapidly expanding bureaucracy.

It is obvious, of course, that a large majority of income taxpayers cannot pay two years' taxes in one year—if they are also to meet bond-buying obligations, make customary contributions, and provide themselves and families with the necessities of life.

It is quite generally understood that one of the purposes of taxation on incomes is to drain surplus war-time earnings into the United States treasury to help pay war costs. It is recognized that this cannot be done without working hardships on many persons with small fixed incomes who are not benefited by wage jumps in other lines of employment.

What is important, however, is that congress should quickly take some sensible action on taxes for this year, so that people may learn the extent of their obligation and govern their bond-buying and other expenditures accordingly.

Learn About Those Red Coupons

NEED for closer study of ration rules is seen in the warning by C. C. Beelman, ration board chairman, against use of red coupons from No. 2 book in advance of their effective dates.

These red coupons become current from week to week, and may be retained for use later in the month, but cannot be drawn upon to cover advance purchases.

This provision is apparently to prevent quantity buying in any one period, and also to exercise paternalistic control over persons who might otherwise be inclined to indulge themselves luxuriously for a week and depend on a kind fate to carry them through the next three weeks.

The "A" red coupons, representing 16 points, are for use this week, or later in the month: the "B" coupons become current next week, and so on through the month.

The whole thing will be less confusing after you get the knack of it—unless they keep shifting it around every time some youthful genius in Washington gets what he mistakes for an idea.

Isolationist Danger Foreseen

SOME disquieting shadows appear on the American scene, as interpreted in an article by Walter Lippmann in the New York Tribune. He finds this nation at a point of history, where it has not yet made up its mind so clearly as many have assumed. He seems to see shadows of isolationism which might wreck national unity again, at a time when lack of domestic harmony and co-operation with our allies would be a great disaster. He is obviously worried by the thought that the requirement of a two-thirds majority in the United States senate for action on foreign affairs might cause another failure. Similar fear may have had something to do with Anthony Eden's visit.

There are voices at Washington tending in that direction. If they had their way, they might involve this nation in the greatest disaster of its history. And it might also be the greatest disaster of the modern world, for it would give the destroyers a chance to prevail.

This is a testing time of modern life and free institutions, and especially of democracy.

'Deadline' Wasn't Really 'Deadline'

ENCOURAGEMENT to procrastination is given by announcement from the office of state registrar of motor vehicles that absence of 1943 auto license stickers is to be overlooked "for several days"—after earlier warnings had been to the effect that March 31 was the final date for payment of license fees.

An entire month had been allowed motorists to pay the fee and get the license sticker for their windshield, and a majority acted in good faith in the matter.

Now, however, the premium goes to those who took their time about it and who felt quite confident that even if they didn't pay their license fee by the specified time "nothing would be done about it."

An assistant state registrar stated that motorists and commercial operators "by the thousands" had failed to obtain new stickers before the deadline—probably because they had become accustomed to not taking "the deadline" seriously.

Example In Conservation

THOROUGHNESS with which the Japanese have prepared for this war is shown in a story told by Gustav Eckstein, a physician who is professor of physiology at the University of Cincinnati. He saw a sign in Japan reading, "Spare the tree, even the smallest, for it may one day become the mast of a ship."

Not for its beauty was the tree to be saved, but for its value in war or commerce. Such pains to conserve even the smallest natural resource put haphazard programs to shame.

Belated Spring In Russia Helps Allies By Delaying Hitler Move

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

SPRING'S terrible mud and slush which are torturing the battle-line in Russia probably are bad news for the unfortunate troops who have to struggle through them, but they're good news for the Allied cause as a whole.

This is once when we can do a lot of powerful hoping that spring will be laggard in eastern Europe and delay the entrance of summer—the season of all-out offensives. The point is the Anglo-American allies need a chance to get set to deliver a powerful blow against Hitler somewhere in western Europe by the time the good weather makes it possible for him to inaugurate another great drive against the Red army.

It would be unsafe to permit the Nazi fuehrer to employ all his striking power on the eastern front again. His position is becoming increasingly difficult and he is likely to try some daring gamble this summer to extricate himself. Freedom from pressure on the west would be an invitation to him to try another smash at the Bolshevists.

Last year the "all highest" started his successful Crimean drive on May 12. A month later his terrific offensive against the Caucasus was in full swing.

This is to say that the Allies have maybe two months in which to finish off Tunisia and pull up their socks for another big show. Their offensive should go down the ways by June first if they are to be in position to deal with the fast moving Nazis.

There are, as pointed out in yesterday's column, several possible offensives, but there's only one which, if successful, could force the Hitlerian war to a speedy conclusion—that is the invasion of France across the English channel. The Russians continue to call for this second front in the west, the latest appeal being from Alexander Troyanovsky, former ambassador to the United States.

WELL, of course that's easier said than done, but the attempt presumably will be made if the Allies have the necessary equipment for such a colossal undertaking. If we can't have that, then we may get an invasion of Italy or the Balkans.

Anyway, so far as one can see everything is being done which could be done at this moment to prepare for an invasion of western Europe if it is feasible when an appropriate moment arrives.

We are speeding up the Tunisian battle so as to release men and equipment, and free the shipping lanes of the Mediterranean. We are giving Germany and occupied territories an awful raking from the air.

Knocking out of Hitler's main industries, military bases and lines of communication in western Europe by heavy bombing is an essential preliminary to invasion.

When I was in England last October I was told in informed quarters that if the Anglo-American bomber force could be trebled—not an excessive figure at all—the job could be completed by this spring. The task is unfinished, and this probably means that the necessary bombers haven't been available.

However, the British-American team has been getting ahead with the business recently. Along with this we get the good word from London that informed observers expected an immediate expansion of the United States air service to follow Major Gen. Ira C. Eaker's statement that the experimental phase of daylight precision bombing had been passed successfully. England looks for a swarm of big bombers from across the Atlantic.

If this expansion materializes, we have a right to expect the combined air-forces will have time in the next couple of months to reduce the Nazis sufficiently to permit of invasion. The good bombing weather is coming on. What we need is the bombers.

Timely Editorial

Wrong Impression Given.

Some Ohioans—the overwhelming majority of Ohioans—hope the impression that the war's principal hardship in this state is the difficulty of buying whisky never will reach the men on the battlefronts. They might not understand that this kind of talk is limited to the small group of patriots back home whose happiness rises and falls with the level of the available liquor supply at any given moment.

The rest of the Ohioans are too busy doing what they are supposed to be doing to worry because the demand for whisky consistently exceeds the supply, causing lines to form at liquor stores. This is something the men doing the fighting should know, in case they have the wrong idea. Actually there isn't a case on record of a man or woman in this state making the supreme sacrifice for his country due to inability to buy whisky. All reports to the contrary should be dismissed as so much loose talk, of comfort only to the enemy.—Canton Repository.

As Others See It

Suggestion.

For us at home one post-war precept ought to be perfectly sound. We shouldn't spend money that we don't have.—Kansas City Times.

Different Story.

Backed up by citizen leaders, California's Governor Warren has proposed a cut of 80 million dollars in state taxes. They didn't make any mistake in that California election last November.—Kansas City Times.

Dave Boone Says:

OUT of a total of 814 men reported missing in action in the battle around Faid Pass, 310 came from the rural communities centering around the little town of Red Oak, Iowa, with a total population of 5,736. That's a hard blow for any community, but it serves to bring out the fact that the small towns are doing their bit in a big way.

It's in the little places that you notice the boys leaving for the wars and it's there that you miss 'em most. No big city can ever feel a war in exactly the same way.

* * *

Thousands of boys leave from the big cities every day, but they're strangers to most residents, which is too bad. But in a country town almost every kid that goes into the service is known by his nickname. And when the train pulls out with a load of these youngsters it brings a lump to your throat.

* * *

Well, Red Oak may become a sort of symbol and the news from it may fill the small-town lads with a determination to "get hunk" with Hitler.

* * *

Rommel seems to be the outstanding violator of that sign: "Walk, do not run to the nearest exit."

Ed McGrady Selected to Act as 'One-Man Army' In Mine Disputes

WASHINGTON—Fearing possible outbreaks in the coal mining states, the war department has made secret preparations to use troops if necessary.

But Ed McGrady, crack labor adviser to the undersecretary of war, feels that the best way to keep order in the mining districts is to talk to the miners in their own language. Formerly assistant secretary of labor, he suggested to the war department that instead of using troops, he be commissioned as a one-man army to keep order.

Accordingly, Ed McGrady has left for the coal areas, to keep his finger on the pulse of the coal miners — and to keep that pulse down.

Ladies First.

AT THE White House, Mrs. Roosevelt was chatting with Madame Chiang Kai-shek. Said the First Lady of the United States: "I was offered $1,500 to write a magazine article giving my impressions of you."

Smiling, the First Lady of China replied, "I was offered $3,000 to write a magazine article of you."

Both were ladies. They had declined to write about each other.

* * *

Food Czar II.

FRIENDS who know Chester Davis, the new farm czar, say he is the best qualified man for the job—which probably is about the toughest in the country.

But they also wonder whether Davis is going to have the brass-knuckles to put farms on a complete war footing.

Chester, as he is called in Washington where almost everyone knows and likes him, is an unusual mixture. When he was on the National Defense Advisory committee in the old pre-war days with Big Bill Knudsen, he tangled with Knudsen about the concentration of war contracts in the hands of a few big corporations. He wanted them spread out among many firms; as the British did. And history has proved he was right.

Chester Davis also bucked the chemical trust when it moved heaven and earth to block the production of ammonia under the TVA. And even in those early days before Pearl Harbor he demanded more farm production, with the abandonment of crop controls.

Cotton Still King.

ON THE other hand, Chester Davis has always been a staunch Farm Bureau man. And the Farm Bureau Federation represents the aristocracy of agriculture. Among other things it represents the cotton farmers, and the biggest nut to crack in converting agriculture to war basis is the cotton bloc.

At present the country has a large surplus of short stable cotton, but because of the cotton bloc the government still is pegging the price at a point where it is not profitable to raise other crops. If part of this huge cotton acreage were diverted to corn, hogs, peanuts, cattle, the food shortage should disappear. The south can grow almost anything. But Ed O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau, most powerful farm lobby in Washington, demands that the price of cotton artificially be kept up.

The first thing to watch about Food Czar Davis, therefore, is his attitude toward the Farm Bureau. Before he came to Washington in 1933 he was assistant to Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, which is the state branch of the Farm Bureau. Later, when Davis was AAA administrator (where he did an A-1 job) he had no patience with friends of the little farmer.

Big vs. Little Farmer.

THE SPLIT between big and little farmers was developing then. Jerome Frank, AAA counsel, now judge of the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals, believed that more help should be given to the sharecropper and tenant farmers. So did Gardner Jacks on and Lee Pressman.

Davis tangled with them. Finally he forced Henry Wallace to throw them out in the famous AAA purge.

Davis was a close friend of Charles Holman, of the Milk Production Federation, whom Wallace called a "distributor disguised in overalls."

Davis also tangled with Paul Appleby, then Wallace's secretary, now Undersecretary of Agriculture, and a champion of the little farmer. The conflict between the two continues, and Appleby is now expected to resign.

These one-time critics of Davis contend that farm production can be increased chiefly through the millions of small farmers who don't have to hire additional labor, but who need seed and fertilizer, rather than through the big farmers who it is argued, are already producing near the saturation point.

In contrast to this viewpoint, Davis' first move was to bring back to Washington Jesse Tapp, former head of Surplus Commodities, who left to become vice-president of the Bank of America in California and who sides with the big citrus growers and the Associated Farmers.

Inside fact is that Chester Davis was brought back by ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes. Byrnes, who understands people and political trends better than almost anyone in Washington, believed Chester could heal the breach between the farm bloc in congress, the administration, and the Farm bureau. Chester has a lot on the ball, and maybe he can do it.

Merry-Go-Round.

HUEY LONGISH haranguer Gerald K. Smith demands that Vice President Wallace be impeached . . . War workers in San Francisco complain that stores sell meat only from noon to 2 p. m., then 4 to 6 p. m. They have no time to stand in line for food during work days, hence absenteeism . . . The National Council for the Prevention of War is sending letters to clergymen suggesting that they write their congressmen against an 11,000,000 man force. The letter quotes the N. Y. Times criticising the president for making a purely military determination of the army's size.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Story of Renowned French Foreign Legion, World's Most Famous Fighting Unit.

SIDI-BEL-ABBES, Algeria—Here is the home of the renowned French Foreign Legion. Probably, over the years, the most famous fighting unit in the world.

The Legion comprises the only true mercenaries left in existence. They'll fight whomever their leaders tell them to; on either side with the same emotions.

A Legionnaire lives with but one high goal—death on the battlefield. On the walls of one of the barracks is inscribed this message from a former commander: "You, Legionnaires, are soldiers made to die. I send you where you die." The message is looked upon with reverence, almost as holy.

Like a good many things in this world, the Legion isn't as romantic when you get close to it as it is from a distance. It does have a fine fighting history, no question to that. And life in the Legion is much more modern than most of us have thought.

And yet it is an empty life, by most standards. It is a bleak life. Men with fine minds, who for obscure reasons go into the ranks of the Legion, find that after a few years their minds have dwindled to a common denominator of mere existence.

They say that most Americans who have joined the Legion can't stick out their five-year enlistments. Before the war Americans and British could get out of the Legion with a little diplomatic pressure. When a German enlisted he was stuck for the five years, no matter how he hated it. But Germans don't hate it the way Americans and Englishmen do.

THE LEGION consists of about 10,000 men. In this war it fought the Germans in France and in Norway. Its record, as usual, was superb. After the fall of France it withdrew to Algeria, its lifelong home. Last year it fought against the British in Syria—it doesn't make any difference to the Legion whom it fights.

Today the Legion is scattered. Some of its units are bottled up by the Japanese in French Indo-China. A few are fighting the Germans in Tunisia. The rest are spotted over North Africa, preparing for future battles. Fewer than 2000 men are here at headquarters.

The morning the Americans landed in North Africa, the Legion started north on the 50-mile run to Oran to join the fighting. But they never arrived. Allied airplanes bombed and machine-gunned them along the highways, and they had to turn back.

Their burned-out trucks still lie along the roadside. Fortunately, there were almost no casualties. The Legionnaires feel badly that they didn't get to Oran in time. Not because they dislike Americans, but simply because they missed a fight.

Now the Legion is hand-in-glove with the Americans, and readying itself to join in the great fight on our side. The soldiers are impatient and itching to get going.

* * *

SIDI-BEL-ABBES has become practically a shrine for Americans over here. More than 400 American officers go through the Legion's home quarters every week. The Legion puts on parades for visiting American generals. American doughboys and Foreign Legion privates walk the streets together and sit in cafes, trying their best to talk to each other.

Discipline in the Legion is probably the strictest in the world. It isn't just a brutal discipline; it is what professional soldiers point to admiringly as the absolute ideal in military precision of conduct.

There is no sloppiness of dress, no relaxing of respect. Soldiers salute an officer clear across the street. They salute officers sitting at tables 50 yards away. Neglect to salute costs a Legionnaire eight days in jail.

They salute me too. They would even if they knew I was only a correspondent, for I'm in uniform and it's the uniform they salute.

There are still rough, murderous men in the Legion, but today many of them are high-type people who left their home countries for political reasons. Fifty-five nationalities are represented. There are only three Americans, and they are not here.

A large percentage of the Legion is now Spanish and German. Once we took over here, the question arose what to do with the German Legionnaires. That has been solved by sending them far to the south, with a detachment which will never come into contact with Axis troops, and will fight no World war battles.

The Germans have made excellent Legionnaires, but they became so numerous there has been some resentment against them among the French.

For Morons Only

WHEN a man is tired of thinking about weighty matters, it is refreshing sometimes, to watch the high school crowd. The way 'teenagers' dress—and don't; their lipstick and hair oil and slang; the inevitable eager question, "Did you hear about the little moron . . .?"

I watched a slender country woman in a threadbare coat buy drapery material at the house furnishing department of a village store. She chose a firm crisp chintz with big splashy flowers.

"It's for my daughter's skirt," she confided to the clerk. "The high school girls are making them out of printed table covers, but this will be cheaper and just as gaudy."

The saleslady smiled. "I have a daughter, too. She wore my best bridge table cloth to school this morning, tied over her head like a rag. She had on her brother's plaid shirt, her daddy's socks and the hired man's denim wamus."

Both laughed.

"My sister's girl wore the baby's pink blanket to Sunday school and sat in the choir all during meeting with a big safety pin shining out below her ear," volunteered the other. "What will they think of next?"

"Did you go to the Christmas cantata?"

"No—why?"

"That Jones boy played a beautiful cornet solo, 'White Christmas'—and when they clapped him back, gave 'em 'Strip Polka.'"

"He would—did you hear that the other day somebody drew a pair of girly legs, artistic and life-size, on the blackboard in the chemistry room. That boy that blushes so was demonstrating a project for Mrs. F., the primmest teacher. He had filled the blackboard with equations and the teacher said, 'You need more room. Just take down that Red Cross flag and go on from there.' So he took it down—and got red as a beet, while the whole class roared. Even the teacher had to laugh."

"Well, they're only young once, —and not long, these days. More power to 'em, say I! Here's your package. I hope she'll like her skirt."

"Thanks." . . . the other hesitated an instant, but the store was empty save for a man, who waited near the door, looking out . . . "I showed her my picture, taken at sixteen," the mother said hurriedly. "My hair was up in tight little puffs on top, and I wore bangs. I had on my first real corset, laced fit to kill. You'll remember how they were—my waist measured 20 inches."

The other nodded. "What did your daughter say?"

She said, "Gosh ma—you were beautiful—but how dumb! Is that maybe how come I'm a moron?"

Biscuits Help Stimulate Use Of Right Food

"How can I get little Johnny to eat the right food?" is a question that every American mother has asked herself at one time or another. Today the problem is even more serious because, busy with Red Cross and other wark work, she has less time to plan menus or to think up "eating games."

One excellent solution to this worry is to stimulate the children's appetites for those necessary, nutritious foods by serving them with biscuits and crackers. Proper amounts of A, C, D, and E vitamins, as well as the important B-complex factors, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin, will be guaranteed if children are given in-between meal snacks of the foods containing these nutrients when served with crackers. Even at regular meals, soups and salads are more tempting and exciting when served with crisp, tasty, energy-giving crackers.

Schools Serve Grahams."

The old stand-by, of course, is graham crackers with milk. Thousands of school children are now being served this combination in schools. Many mothers also make it a regular after-school treat.

Peanut butter on crackers, too, is very popular as peanuts are an excellent source of B1 (thiamine) and B2 (riboflavin) which are essential to proper growth, while crackers and cookies supply the quick energy which all growing children must have. Here's another tip If the children grow tired of orange juice in the morning, give it to them after school with some crackers.

In addition to inspiring consumption of even "seconds" of these needed foods by making them more appetizing and appealing, crackers and biscuits perform another important job—they are one of the most concentrated energy fools. Hard playing children must have enough energy foods as well as proper vitamins if they are to grow strong and remain healthy.

Should School Fit Girls for Factory Jobs?

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

In our high schools, the courses for boys are being revamped to fit them for induction into the armed forces. Yet very little is being done for the girls.

It seems to me that most of these special courses should be opened to girls, particularly those in science and mathematics. Industry will need many girls who have had basic couses in chemistry, physics, and mathematics.

Then there should be special courses for girls. Perhaps they should have a course in the various problems and procedures of industry and how they can prove most effective there—for induction into industry. Also girls who have the ability should be instructed in mathematics, chemistry and physiology, nutrition, dietetics, and home care of the sick. All the girls in junior and senior high school should be given some instruction in child development and child care.

They need training, too, in psychology of the child from six to 12. This course should emphasize understanding of the child of this age and ways of guiding him at home and in groups, with special emphasis on his recreation and protection.

Training Needed.

Right now junior and senior high school girls should learn games and ways of having creative fun with children at home, games which don't require running or encourage roughhouse. These girls need to learn to read poetry and prose effectively to the young child and to inspire the older children of the family to read to the younger ones. Our junior and senior high school girls also should learn in school of the items of responsibility essential to good service when they go to a home to care for children there.

Many high school girls should prepare to enter nursing training. So should college girls. The field is big and many nurses for homes and institutions will be needed for years after this war, not only in the United States but throughout the world. Also many more public health nurses will be needed then than before Pearl Harbor. This war is making every community more sensitive to its responsibility for the health of all its people, especially its children.

Helping Younger Children.

Our junior and senior high school girls should have training in the use of simple tools in order to guide children in making things at home from paper, cardboard, cloth, wood and many other things. These girls should learn how to stimulate the youngsters to color, draw, construct and create in all sorts of ways.

Moreover, junior and senior high school girls should learn about good magazines and books suited to the child's age and reading ability, cooperating with the public library in selecting and borrowing books with and for these children.

Furthermore, our teen-age girls should be trained now in organizing and leading clubs of children, say from 8 to 14, to be effective leaders of Brownies, Cubs and Scouts.

We parents would like to see our girls in their early teens be given an opportunity at school to learn such things as we have suggested, in order that they might feel more worthwhile in helping win this war and actually prove that they can help in a very effective way.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Should a boy or girls from 8 to 10 do the dishes once a day without first jumping up from the table and running out to play?

A. Yes; just see that they do. It might be better to have one do the dishes today and the other tomorrow, marking on the calendar when each should do these dishes thereafter.

MRS. F. M. FRIZZELL and her committee of Circle 3 entertained the W. S. C. S. of the First Methodist church at a 12:30 luncheon Thursday afternoon, when members held a combined Lenten and unit meeting.

Mrs. Elis Lincoln was in charge of the Lenten meeting, which was opened by group singing of "The Old Rugged Cross." A Lenten meditation was given by Mrs. R. W. James, after which Mrs. Lincoln told of rest homes which are benefited by a collection taken at the meeting.

Mrs. O. G. Place, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. L. D. Bowers, program chairman, opened the program with "Onward Christian Soldiers," which was sung by the society. A reading entitled "No Head for Figures, But a Heart to Give," was given by Mrs. Neil Ruhl, who was dressed in a costume over 100 years old.

An interesting talk on South American music was presented by Mrs. E. D. Gibson, who told of the three kinds of music found in South America. They are the native Indian music, high cultured music, brought by the Spanish to South America, and the religious type of music. She told of the characteristics of each country, and its individual music. In closing, she stated that Indians, Spaniards and Negroes have more rhythm than other peoples. These, combined, make South American music the beautiful music that it is.

The group was dismissed with a prayer by Mrs. James. The luncheon of the May 6 meeting will be in charge of Circle 4. Circle 3 will present the program.
